Soviet Premier Raps Repeal of Arms Embargo

'Only Mask to Cover Struggle for Profit,' He Says

SCORES ALLIES

Molotov Charges Britain And France Want to Prolong War

Moscow — (AP) — Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov today assailed the United States for repealing the arms embargo, asserting it was "only a mask to cover their struggle for profit."

In a speech opening a three-day celebration of the bolshevik revolution's twenty-second anniversary, Molotov also attacked Britain and France, accusing them of wishing to prolong their war against Germany.

Joseph Stalin, War Commissar Marshal Klementi Voroshilov and other leaders were among those in Bolshoi opera house who applauded his words which included a sweeping attack on capitalism.

The premier spoke shortly after publication of a communist international manifesto calling on workers of Britain and France to "go against those who favor continuation of imperialistic war."

Molotov, asserting that half the world is at war because of a conflict in Europe, declared the capitalist system was sure to fall now.

Lashes at Capitalists
He said the workers and peasants longer would put up with capitalist exploitation, those who want to fight under the pretext of "defense of democracy."

The Soviet Union wants peace, he said.

Most of the diplomatic corps was present, including the United States and British ambassadors, Laurence A. Steinhardt and Sir William Seeds.

Also present were most members of the Finnish delegation which is here for vital negotiations over Soviet territorial demands.

Reich Envoy Absent
The German ambassador, Count Friedrich Werner von Schulenburg, will not return from Berlin conferences until tomorrow.

Mention of Stalin's name brought more cheers from the assembly than the name of Lenin.

Molotov boasted of improvement in the Soviet Union's diplomatic and military importance and of studies in her industrial and agricultural output during the current year.

"We do not know what can happen, but we always have to develop the defense of our country," he said. "We are not afraid of anything. We know that our country is the best, our policy is the policy of peace and we will go the same way in the future, which will bring us to final victory."

The premier declared that the "principal achievement" of capitalism was to involve half the population of the world in war, counting the British and French colonial empires and the Japanese-Chinese war.

SEES PRESSURE ON JAPS
Washington — (AP) — A prediction that the 1940 congress might follow up the administration's neutrality program, now in full operation, by authorizing economic pressure against Japan was made today by legislative leaders.

Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee said that unless relations with Tokio improved before the Japanese-American commercial treaty expires Jan. 26, congress undoubtedly would enact his resolution empowering the president to embargo "any or all" exports to Japan.

Pittman was in the small group of congressmen Saturday who saw President Roosevelt sign the neutrality bill repealing the arms embargo and setting up a "cash and carry" system of trade with warring nations. The legislation does

Annenberg Racing Services Appeal To Federal Courts

File Injunctive Suits in Effort to Preserve Contracts

Chicago — (AP) — M. L. Annenberg's horse-racing information services appealed to the courts today to preserve their lifelines—the telephone and telegraph wires.

Nationwide News Service of Delaware, Inc., and Nationwide News Service of Illinois, Inc., filed a pair of injunctive suits in federal court asking that the Illinois Bell Telephone company and the American Telephone and Telegraph company be restrained from canceling more than $1,000,000 worth of contracts.

The suits also named as defendants State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney of Cook county (Chicago) and United States District Attorney William J. Campbell. The latter has demanded that the two telephone companies and Western Union cease furnishing facilities to the Annenberg interests for the dissemination of horse-racing results, odds paid on races and other track information.

Judge James H. Wilkerson, granting an immediate hearing, suggested that status quo be maintained until he had heard arguments in the case. Campbell said that would be "very fair."

Service Until Thursday
Later, attorneys for both sides stipulated the telephone company's service would be maintained at Turn to page 2 col. 4

Four Feared Dead In Mine Explosion

Fifth Man Injured in Blast in West Virginia; Rescue Crews Busy

Mullens, W. Va. — (AP) — Four men were reported killed and one was injured in an explosion today at the mine of the Brule Smokeless Coal company in nearby Otsego.

Official comment from the company was lacking but persons near the scene said the "local" gas explosion caught five men in a "room" of the mine.

The trapped men, believed to be dead, were unofficially listed as Stanley Ray, 24, Bruce Ray, 30, a brother Henry Mullens, all of Otsego.

The injured man was Joe Lamboni, 41, feared to have a broken back.

At noon rescue crews were attempting to reach the men, caught deep in the pit behind a slate fall, but there was little hope they would be alive.

Green Assails Use of Sit-Down, Slow-Down Strikes in Organizing

Washington — (AP) — President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today criticized the use of sit-down or slow-down strikes in announcing the opening of a national organizing campaign.

The A. F. of L. leader said that more than 800 local committees had been organized with the assistance of city central labor bodies to make a survey of all unorganized plants in their local areas.

The survey will precede the sending of A. F. of L. organizers into the field in a new membership campaign. The last report showed A. F. of L. membership in excess of 4,000,000.

In a statement, Green expressed the opinion that using sit-down or slow-down strikes as organizing technique "hurt the workers instead of helping them."

It is our purpose to stabilize industry by collective bargaining," he added, "not to destroy it and destroy the jobs of our members by coercive and revolutionary tactics."

Herbert S. Bigelow, leader of the Ohio pension drive, said last night if his proposed amendment to the state constitution was defeated, he would draft a revised proposal increasing taxes for pension payments.

To guarantee every retired Ohioan over 60 a pension of at least $50

a month, Bigelow would collect a tax equal to one-fourth of the federal income tax, and a tax of 2 percent of the value of all land worth more than $20,000 an acre.

Opponents have argued that his plan would close the schools, put hospitals out of commission and stop highway work.

The pension battle in California centered on a revised "30-every-Thursday" program. An administrator, with some powers over production and distribution, would give "warrants" worth from $15 to $30 to non-workers over 50.

Theoretically, the scrip would circulate as money; but whoever held it at the end of each week would be required to attach a 2-cent stamp

Six Convicts Facing Murder Trial in Slaying of Guard During Plot to Break Prison

Jackson, Mich. — (AP) — Prosecutor Owen Dudley said today that warrants charging first degree murder would be prepared this afternoon for the six Southern Michigan prisoners who killed a guard Sunday in an unsuccessful attempt to gain their freedom.

Warden Harry H. Jackson said Samuel Sawaya, one of the six, had admitted being the trigger man responsible directly for the killing of Chief Guard Inspector Fred Boucher. However, all the inmates involved in the case must share the responsibility, the warden said.

The veteran Boucher was struck by six bullets.

John W. Miner, chairman of the state prison commission, said a commission meeting would be held late in the week, probably Friday, to consider the latest attempt by Michigan convicts to break for freedom.

At Lansing, Governor Dickinson said today that the state's investigation of Sunday's break should take into consideration the possibility of an underground connection with September's break from the northern branch prison at Marquette.

Dickinson said that angle of a proposed investigation was "just merely a suggested thought" which arose "incidentally" in the course of conversations with his legal adviser, Emerson R. Boyles, and Attorney General Thomas Read this morning.

Thorough Inquiry
Read told reporters he would undertake a thorough investigation at the prison this afternoon or tomorrow. Asked whether he had any suspicion of a connection between the breaks, he replied:

"I wouldn't say that. But I don't know a thing about it."

Reporters sought a clarification of the governor's comment.

"In other words," he was asked by a member of his press conference, "is it binding upon this court as the supreme law of the land?"

City of Flint Crew Is Awaiting Word to Sail From Norway

Oslo, Norway — (AP) — Her freedom assured by Norway's rejection of German protests, the United States freighter City of Flint idled at anchor today awaiting a decision as to where her strange voyage would take her next.

It was apparent that Norwegian officials, anxious over the possibility of German agents making an issue of the case, would like to see the ship outside Norwegian waters bound for anywhere.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States minister to Norway, was expected to confer at Bergen today with the United States consul, Maurice P. Dunlap, and Captain Joseph A. Gainard, master of the City of Flint.

One rumor was that the ship's freight had been sold at Bergen but any such sale, it was believed, would have to be tentative and dependent on official decisions.

The possibility was mentioned in shipping circles that the freighter's cargo of tractors, leather, fruit, wax and other articles might first be transferred to a British ship and taken to England.

The freighter's freedom and interment of the Nazi prize crew which took command of her on the Atlantic Oct. 9 was assured yesterday when Norway rejected a Nazi protest.

Two Youths Accused in Robbery at Plymouth

Plymouth, Wis. — (AP) — Carl Dombrosky, 20, and Arthur Strzyzewski, 23, both of Manitowish, waived a hearing before Police Justice T. F. Volk today and were bound over to circuit court for trial on charges growing out of a robbery here last week.

Bonds were fixed at $3,000 and $2,500 respectively.

Chief of Police Glenn Zimmerman said the youths had signed confessions admitting holdups here and at two rivers.

Warrants were issued charging Dombrosky with robbery while armed and Strzyzewski with being an accessory to armed robbery and with carrying concealed weapons, in connection with a $19 holdup of a furniture store here Friday night.

Chief Zimmerman said the men also had admitted holding up a Two Rivers filling station two weeks ago. Zimmerman said the men formerly were inmates of the Green Bay state reformatory.

Prisoner Captured
In Attempt to Escape
Waupun — (AP) — Edward Kujawa, 44, long term prisoner from Milwaukee, saved through his cell bars and a cell block window at the state prison today but surrendered without a struggle when trapped in Deputy Warden Frank Bernard's home in the prison grounds.

Bernard heard Kujawa sneaking through his house about 4 a. m., trained a gun on him and called to him to stop.

The prisoner was sentenced in 1938 along with Henry Piontek, 33, to terms totaling 26 years after they pleaded guilty to three counts of burglary.

HOLC Victor In Suit Over State Taxes

Mortgages Ruled Not Subject to Documentary And Recording Levies

MARYLAND DISPUTE

Government Argues Agency Is 'Instrumentality Of United States'

Washington — (AP) — Deciding another conflict between federal and state power, the supreme court ruled today that mortgages on Maryland property executed to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation were not subject to state documentary and recording taxes.

The government contended the HOLC was "an instrumentality of the United States engaged in the functioning of the federal government" and that state taxation "is precluded by constitutional limitation."

In reply the state argued that the taxes customarily were paid by the mortgagor and that any burden on the HOLC "as an instrumentality of the United States was speculative remote and uncertain if it existed at all."

State's Argument
Maryland asserted that if the HOLC were exempted from the taxes "a similar exemption must exist as to each of the other numerous lending agencies of the federal government." The state added that if federal agencies did not have to pay the assessments the taxes probably would be abandoned to avoid discrimination against private agencies.

Chief Justice Hughes delivered the decision that affirmed a ruling in favor of the federal government by the Maryland court of appeals.

No dissent was announced.

"Congress," the chief said, "has undertaken to safeguard the operations of the Home Owners Loan Corporation by providing the described immunity. As we have said, we construe this provision as embracing and prohibiting the tax in question. Since congress had the constitutional authority to enact this provision, it is binding upon this court as the supreme law of the land."

Suspect Is Held In Slaying Case

Farmer Declares He Will Plead Self-Defense at His Arraignment

Antigo — (AP) — Sheriff Elmer Frey today quoted James Blaine Skidmore, 56-year-old farmer, as saying he would plead self-defense when arraigned tomorrow on a charge of murdering Orville Nass, 21, husky lumberjack friend of Skidmore's 20-year-old daughter.

Nass was shot and wounded fatally about 1:30 p. m. Sunday in the rear of Suick's dance hall near Pearson, 20 miles from here. He died in an Antigo hospital about 9 a. m.

Frey said the two had been at a dance following the wedding of Skidmore's son, Bernard. They got into an argument and went back of the hall to "have it out," the sheriff said. He would not reveal the cause of the argument except that it concerned the daughter.

Four persons witnessed the shooting by chance, Frey said. He quoted Nass as telling Skidmore that "I'll go the limit with you." Skidmore then stepped back three paces and fired one shot from a .32 pistol into Nass' left eye, Frey said.

Skidmore got into a car with another son, James, and the latter's wife, and came to the sheriff's office. Frey quoted him as saying, "I want you to put me in jail. I've killed a man at Pearson."

Grain Being Poured Into Ships in Chicago

Chicago — (AP) — Tons of grain pouring from elevator spouts into vessel holds for shipment through the Great Lakes attested today to improved war-time European demand for some American farm products.

As rapidly as ship space could be obtained, grain was being funneled into bottoms here. Boats were in demand because of expanded requirements for cargoes of grain as well as other commodities, particularly one to feed the booming Calumet steel furnaces.

Tail elevators that line the Calumet and Chicago rivers were disgorging their grain into waiting ships below at an even faster pace than some commodities were being shipped into Chicago. For example, soy bean shipments last week by boat and rail totaled 1,904,000 bushels, compared with receipts of 1,005,000 bushels.

Next Session Will be Brief, Bankhead Says

Washington — (AP) — Speaker Bankhead predicted today that members would try to keep the next session of congress brief so they may go back home to campaign.

"It will be the natural disposition of the members," the speaker told a press conference, "to have as short a session as possible since it is a campaign year."

The regular congressional session begins Jan. 3.

Bankhead said the only things on the legislative program so far were the appropriation bills.

Browder Charges His Accuser Also Uses False Name

Asserts Representative Thomas 'Sitting in Congress Under Pseudonym'

Boston — (AP) — Earl Browder, Communist leader under indictment for using a false name on a passport, sought today an investigation of his accuser, Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R-N. J.) who, he said, was "himself sitting in congress . . . under a pseudonym."

Making his first public appearance since his release under bail Browder called upon Attorney General Frank Murphy, in a speech last night, to investigate Thomas. Browder also advocated socialism for this country and he hailed the Soviet republic as the "world's greatest power for peace."

Browder declared Parnell was christened "John Parnell Feeney, Jr.," and that he had been unable to find any record where the congressman had had his name changed in the courts.

"I understand there is a federal statute that prohibits any person from holding office or drawing salary from the government under any name other than his own," said Browder, "since Attorney General Murphy has become interested in tracing down pseudonyms, is it too much to expect that he will look into this matter, along with many others that may be brought to his attention in the near future?"

Browder said that the Hoover administration knew all about his using a pseudonym on passports, but decided that it did not merit prosecution, and dropped the matter.

SAYS HE CHANGED NAME
Allendale, N. J. — (AP) — Representative J. Parnell Thomas replied to Earl Browder's charge that he is using a false name by declaring today that "everybody" knows he changed his name.

"Mr. Browder can't squeeze out of his own predicament by my sneaking attack," Thomas said. "He's caught, he knows he is, and it is about time. Every time the reds or the bund want to attack me, they Turn to page 9 col. 6

Dysentery Claims Toll of Dozen Lives In Eastern Hospital

Norwich, Conn. — (AP) — Dr. Chester Waterman, superintendent of the Norwich State hospital, disclosed today that a "little outbreak" of dysentery in the female infirmary had taken a toll of "about twelve lives" during the last three weeks, but now was believed to be under control.

The head of the institution stated that approximately thirty more of the 220 patients, all between the ages of 65 and 100, had been stricken, but appeared to be recovering.

The building has been isolated since the outbreak, Dr. Waterman said, and has been under supervision of the Norwich and Connecticut health departments. The disease is believed to have been brought in by a new patient.

Pointing out that the patients in the stricken building were "elderly women," Dr. Waterman stated:

"Dysentery is common among old people when there are temperature changes."

The institution has been under investigation by a special committee named by Governor Raymond E. Baldwin after State Senator Joseph B. Downes of Norwich charged on the floor of the senate that conditions at the hospital "stunk to high heaven."

PROTESTS TO GERMAN BRUSSELS

Brussels — (AP) — The Belgian government protested today to Berlin against planes which flew over the country yesterday.

PEDESTRIAN KILLED

Albert Pasch, 77, above, 903 N. Superior street, was killed about 7:20 Saturday evening when struck by a truck while he was crossing Superior street near his home. The truck was driven by Charles Herrmann, Jr., 543 N. Durkee street, who told police he was driving about 20 miles per hour. An inquest will be held.

Boy Rescued but Officials Wonder Who'll Pay Costs

$4,000 Spent in Feeding And Equipping 800 Searchers in Arizona

Winslow, Ariz. — (AP) — Fellow grade-school pupils spoke in awe of the exploits of Bruce Crozier, 7, who survived almost a week of hunger and exposure in one of Arizona's wildest areas. But matter of fact forest service officials raised the question of repayment of approximately $4,000 spent in feeding and equipping 800 searchers.

Bruce, recuperating in a Holbrook hospital, just wise-cracked with nurses. His ordeal ended late Saturday as he walked into a deer-hunting camp in Wildcat canyon, 60 miles south of here.

Dr. B. J. Davis, marveling at Bruce's hardy constitution, reported that after a day of rest he was "about as good as new." There still were signs of exhaustion and dehydration, but Dr. Davis said the boy's temperature had dropped from 102 degrees Saturday night to normal.

At Bruce's Winslow grade school, his exploits were the main topic of conversation.

Supervisor Fred Merkle of Sitgreaves National forest and other forest officials began to worry about collecting $4,000 advanced for food and equipment during the search. At the height of the hunt, cost of feeding the posse alone was estimated at $800 per day. In addition, Navajo county advanced more than $100 in chartering a plane to bring bloodhounds from New Mexico state prison at Santa Fe.

Public subscription campaigns that started simultaneously in Winslow and Holbrook will defray part of the expense, Governor Bob J. Bruce said the state would provide some assistance through his contingency fund.

3,000 Officers Being Added to Italy's Army

Rome — (AP) — Premier Mussolini added 3,000 lieutenants and non-commissioned officers to the army today to staff new troop units.

A communique yesterday said it had given military chiefs instructions for "preparing and amplifying army units."

Mussolini ordered emergency recruitment of 1,500 lieutenants and 1,500 non-commissioned officers, preferably from among those with experience in the Ethiopian and Spanish wars.

Fascists said the new recruitments would help to give the army its full fighting efficiency.

Albert Pasch Struck While Crossing Street Saturday

INQUEST CALLED

Six Injured, One Critically, When Car Hits Freight Train

An Appleton pedestrian was killed and seven other persons injured, one critically, in traffic accidents in the Appleton area over the weekend.

Eleven other violent deaths were reported in Wisconsin and two in upper Michigan over the weekend. Two of the victims, a young mother and her 10-months-old daughter, lost their lives when an automobile ran off a scenic driveway near Ishpeming, Mich., and plunged into Cedar lake, two burned to death, one of the latter a Spanish-American war veteran who was trapped in his blazing home. The other fatalities included traffic deaths and a suffocation.

Albert Pasch, 77, 903 N. Superior street, was killed within a block of his home when struck by a truck driven by Charles Herrmann, Jr., 20, 543 N. Durkee street, about 7:20 Saturday evening, according to police. Pasch was rushed to St. Elizabeth's hospital in the Kunitz ambulance and was dead upon arrival there.

Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, county coroner, called a coroner's jury which viewed the body Sunday morning. Raymond P. Dohr, district attorney, said an inquest will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the courthouse. Jurors are Nick Green, Frank Ponschok, Walter Steenis, George Wood, Joseph Drexler and Mike Jacobs.

The accident gives Appleton its first pedestrian death, all of the victims being killed within a short distance of their homes. The traffic fatality is the fourteenth in the county this year.

Crossing Street
Pasch was walking from the east to the west side of Superior street in the 800 block and Herrmann was going south when the accident occurred, it was reported to police. Herrmann told police he was traveling about 20 miles per hour and did not see Pasch until he was hit. Measurements taken by police indicated that the accident occurred south of the south crosswalk on Superior street.

The victim was injured in a similar traffic accident last February, according to police records.

Pasch was born June 8, 1862, in Germany.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Clarence Techlin, Seymour; a son, Ervin, Plymouth; a brother, Rudolph, Appleton; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:45 Tuesday afternoon at the Hoh Funeral home and at 2 o'clock at Zion Lutheran church by the Rev. Theodore Marth. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

John Dramulke, 22, Almond, was critically hurt and five others less seriously injured when the car in which they were riding struck a Soo line freight train on Highway 145 at Weyauwega at 12:15 Sunday morning. Dramulke suffered chest injuries.

The car was being driven south by Elmer Johnson, 27, route 1, Wauwauca, who suffered two broken legs. He told Sheriff Duncan R. Campbell that he saw the stopped freight 20 feet ahead of him and that the immediate application of his brakes failed to prevent a collision with a box car. The freight was stopped on a siding, awaiting the passage of a passenger train.

Other occupants of the car who were injured are Miss Arleen Boufford, 23, route 2, Wauwauca, broken arm; Harvey Spear, 18, route 1, Wauwauca, cuts and bruises; Robert Green, 17, route 1, Wauwauca, cuts and bruises; and Don Manning, 19, route 2, Wauwauca, cuts and bruises. They were taken to the Wauwauca City hospital.

Leland Hoier, 23, route 1, Hortenville, suffered a broken nose and lacerations about the head when he fell sleep at the wheel of his car and it went off Highway 76 in the town of Greenville about 3:30 this morning, struck a telephone pole and turned over, landing upright. Hoier was going west when the accident occurred.

Observatory Reports Finding of New Comet

Cambridge, Mass. — (AP) — A new comet, which probably will bear the name of its discoverer, Clarence L. Friend, of Escondido, Calif., was reported today by the Harvard observatory.

An observatory spokesman said that Friend, co-discoverer last spring of Hassell's comet, informed the university he sighted the comet Friday night in the constellation of Hercules, about three degrees south of the great cluster of Hercules.

Checking the report of the amateur astronomer, Harvard observatory found the new comet was of magnitude 12 and moving eastward about one and one-half degrees a day.

Heavy Damage as Severe Storm Hits Eastern Seaboard

Sleet, Heavy Rains and Snow Strike Area; Gale Subsides Today

New York—(AP)—A 65-mile-an-hour gale that lashed eastern seaboard states with heavy rains and snow subsided today, leaving in its wake much inland and waterfront property damage.

The storm, traveling north from Cape Hatteras, battered the coastline last night with a fury reminiscent of the New England hurricane of September, 1933.

The disturbance was described as a "tropical cyclone" by Prof. Charles F. Brooks of Harvard's Blue Hill observatory. Dr. Brooks, who sent up a recording balloon, said the temperature dropped to 35 degrees below zero at 38,000 feet.

A striking feature of the storm, he added, was the excessively dry atmosphere at 4,500 feet.

Traffic Hazards. Clearing skies were forecast for most of the area, but temperatures tumbling, sub-freezing levels made highway traffic perilous. Snow plows were called out to clear highways in Vermont.

Several small ocean vessels were pounded to pieces and coast guardsmen answered distress calls from pleasure craft from New Jersey to Boston.

Four exhausted men were rescued from a 35-foot disabled motorboat off New Bedford, Mass., by a coast guard power boat attracted by making off flames of gasoline-saturated rags.

Three small craft reported in trouble off Rhode Island still were sought by coast guardsmen. The storm forced a steamship to heaven off Nantucket.

Along Massachusetts' north shore scores of automobiles were stalled when waves whipped over sea walls splashed their ignition systems.

Trade Agreement Signed Between U. S., Venezuela

Accord Is Reached at Caracas, State Department Announces

Washington—(AP)—The state department announced today the signing at Caracas of a trade agreement between United States and Venezuela.

The agreement is the twenty-second negotiated by the United States and the eleventh to be concluded with American republics.

The state department disclosed that the general provisions and the schedules of concessions will enter provisionally into force Dec. 16, pending ratification of the agreement by the Venezuelan government.

The agreement will enter into force 30 days after exchange of the instrument of ratification of the Venezuelan government and the proclamation of the agreement by President Roosevelt. It will remain in force until Dec. 15, 1942.

The state department's announcement said:

"Concessions, including bindings (keeping tariff rates at their present figures), obtained from Venezuela cover such important American exports to that country as wheat, flour, oatmeal, prepared milks, hog lard, lumber, iron and steel products, automotive products and accessories, radios, refrigerators, engines, pharmaceutical products and paints. These products represented in 1933 about 36 per cent of total United States exports to Venezuela, or about $19,000,000 out of $52,000,000.

List Concessions. "Concessions granted to Venezuela include a reduction of 50 per cent in the import tax on crude petroleum and fuel oil on an annual quota of imports not in excess of 5 per cent of the total quantity of crude petroleum processed in refineries in the continental United States during the preceding calendar year. The other concessions granted to Venezuela consist chiefly of guarantees of continued duty-free entry on fuel oil used for vessel bunkers and on a list of tropical or semi-tropical products of which Venezuela is a supplier."

The department asserted that "upon entry into force of the agreement with Venezuela, our trade with that nation and the other 19 countries with which trade agreements are now in effect will constitute about 60 per cent of total United States trade with the world."

The agreement has been under negotiation for more than a year. Since May 12, 1933, trade relations between the two countries have been regulated by a provisional commercial agreement providing for reciprocal unconditional most-favored-nation treatment.

Today's agreement supplants this arrangement but continues and strengthens the provisions for unconditional most-favored-nation treatment and in addition provides for reciprocal tariff concessions.

Woman, Baby Drowned When Car Leaves Road

Ithaca, Mich.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Pelmar Ogness, 21, and her 10-month-old baby, Geraldine, drowned when an automobile driven by her husband, Leo, 20, ran off a road-way near here late Saturday and plunged into Cedar lake.

Ogness managed to free himself from the car and then swam to shore. He ran two miles to a highway to flag a motorist.

The baby's body was recovered from the automobile, which was resting in 15 feet of water, while Mrs. Ogness' body was found floating near the shore.

Lewistown, Pa.—(AP)—Burns proved fatal yesterday for a 69-year-old farmer who drank gasoline in mistake for wine and then spit it out on a hot stove. Mrs. Austin Burd said her husband picked up the wrong jug. Flames leaped up as he spit out the gasoline, igniting his clothing.

Begin Tests to Locate Site of Wolf River Dam

Reservoir Company Proceeds With Exploratory Drillings Near Lily

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau. Madison—The Wolf River Reservoir company, formed to aid Fox river paper manufacturers and other industrialists by increasing the water flow of the Fox river in dry seasons, has begun exploratory drillings at the proposed dam site at Lily in Langlade county. The state public service commission has been informed.

Harry Brooks, secretary of the company, has notified commission staff members that he is conducting drilling tests in the dam area to determine the proper location of the dam, construction of which the company hopes can be begun this fall.

After the dam site is established, the company will apply to the public service commission for approval of the plans, which the state legislature has declared is a necessary prerequisite for construction.

The company will also be required to obtain the permission of the federal power commission and possibly the war department before it can proceed with damming the Wolf river in its upper reaches. However, it is considered likely that the war department will promptly endorse plans to improve the stream flow and thus the navigability of the lower Fox river.

By releasing stored Wolf river water to Lake Winnebago during the dry summer season, the company plans to improve the water power facilities of the Fox river. Local officials, and particularly several paper firms, supported a bill in the 1933 legislature which authorized the project.

Annenberg Racing Services Appeal To Federal Courts

least until noon Thursday, when the American Telephone and Telegraph company and Western Union planned to withdraw their facilities.

Last August a federal grand jury here indicted various Annenberg interests for, among other things, using interstate wires for the transmission of information which the government contended was in effect prize lists in a lottery scheme.

With Courtney supporting him, Campbell notified the wire companies that the government considered they were aiding and abetting a lottery by allowing their wires to be used for the circulation of racing news.

Hammond Chaffetz, an Annenberg attorney who filed the federal court suits, said a similar suit was to be filed in a state court today against Illinois Bell and the two prosecutors. A fourth suit, he announced, was being prepared against Western Union, for filing in federal court.

The suits on file alleged the news services were in interstate commerce and subject only to special federal statutes. Courtney has no jurisdiction in the matter, they contended, while Campbell has gone beyond his authority.

They petitioned for temporary injunctions to restrain the wire companies from withdrawing their services, as they have indicated they would do, and to restrain the prosecutors from threatening them or delivering ultimatums.

With Russian Help, Germany Could Get Planes From U. S.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Now that we have passed a neutrality act in order to help the British and French obtain airplanes, someone comes along with the upsetting thought that possibly Germany may become a real beneficiary also.

The idea is that she may be able to avail herself of the arms-embargo repeal by using the Pacific route, with the assistance of Soviet Russia and possibly Japan. With the aid of Russia's trans-Siberian railroad, Japan's shipping, and the naval protection of Soviet submarines in the Pacific, Germany might have access to the Pacific coast aviation industry's output. She probably would have to obtain the cash through Moscow.

This may be an easy-chair dream but it is a possibility that has been overlooked entirely in congressional debate. If by any chance Germany should be able to work out some such procurement arrangement, to take advantage of the Pacific route and bring in her supplies through the back door, this government would have a problem in its lap. Secretary of State Hull put the squeeze on the American aviation industry some time back and induced it to cease supplying planes to Japan for use against China. The same methods might be used if Germany wished to become a customer. Or the airplane industry might be kept loaded with earlier orders for the British and French, not to mention our own requirements.

Well, it's nothing to become excited about as yet. The possibility is more interesting because it emphasizes the importance of Russia in the Pacific. We ordinarily do not regard Russia as a Pacific power yet she is the third power there. She has a heavy submarine fleet based at Vladivostok and she has large interests in the Pacific.

When the president moved into the negotiations between Moscow and Finland, it seemed on the surface something addressed entirely to the European situation. However, it is possible that one thought behind this sudden American interest in Russia had to do not primarily with Europe but with the Pacific. Russia—aside from Mexico and Canada—is our nearest neighbor. Russian soil lies practically within gunshot of American territory. From Alaska you can almost see Russian territory. Indeed the Monroe doctrine was precipitated because Russia issued a ukase prohibiting shipping of other nationality from navigating or fishing within 100 miles of the Alaskan coast.

U. S. is Showing Great Interest in Russian Moves
This is not to read any portentous meaning into what is going on, not to minimize our desire to see Finland enjoy a fair break at the hands of Moscow, not to see something under the bed, but only to stress what one of my widely traveled friends sees, namely that most of us completely overlook the importance of Russia as a Pacific power and therefore overlook the direct interest which we have in Russian policy.

Recently this government has manifested an unusual interest in Russian policies, and is critical of them to an extent that cannot be and Tokio succeed in forming some working arrangement the balance in the western Pacific will be drastically altered and our problem in the Far East will become more difficult.

Perhaps that possibility is in the back of official minds here as they take swings now at Moscow, and, plus the immediate chance that Russia may try to operate as a backdoor procurement agency for Germany.

Here's America's Shrewdest Cigarette Buy...
The quality cigarette every smoker can afford

●MILDER...MELLOWER...SLOWER-BURNING! Naturally, Camels have more fragrance—and taste better too. There's no fast burning to mar the marvelous pleasure of their finer, more expensive tobaccos! Yet Camel's costlier tobaccos cost less to smoke. No wonder Camels are famous as America's shrewdest cigarette choice!

Whatever price you pay per pack, it's important to remember this fact: By burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—CAMELS give a smoking plus equal to

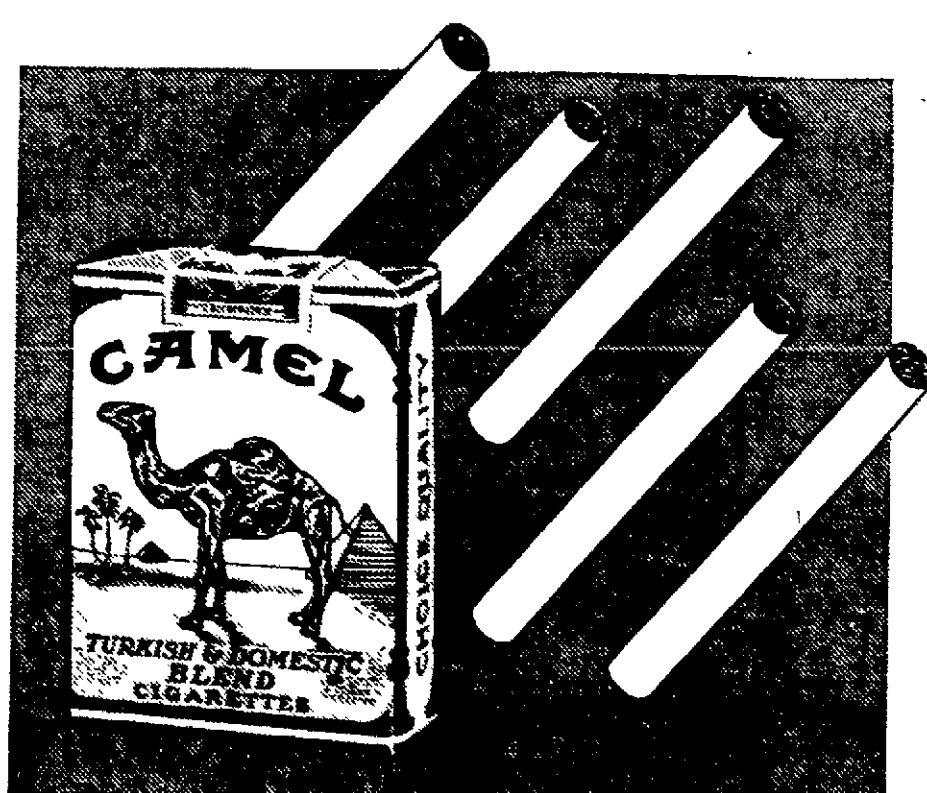

5 EXTRA SMOKES
PER PACK!

Sixteen of the largest-selling cigarette brands were recently compared in impartial scientific tests by a leading research laboratory. The results:

- 1 CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.
- 2 CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!
- 3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands.

Kaukauna Eleven Begins Drills for E. DePere Battle

Record Crowd Is Expected to Watch Champions Perform Saturday

Kaukauna — With the most successful conference season they have ever had behind them, high school gridirers were slated to begin practice sessions today for the season's last contest Saturday, with East DePere coming here. The largest crowd of the season is expected Saturday to see Coach Paul Little's team in its 1939 finale, a team which many call the greatest to ever represent Kaukauna High school.

The DePere Redbirds, winners last year of the eastern half of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference, started off with a winning game the early part of this season but then slipped. Last Wednesday at DePere the Redbirds were tied by Oconto Falls, 6 to 6, in a game played before Kaukauna met West DePere. East DePere has a big team, and probably will outweigh the Kaws more than any other team this year. But the Redbirds are slow, the line especially, and play a waiting rather than a charging game. At least this was the case Wednesday, when a much lighter Oconto Falls eleven pushed East DePere all over the field, and was deep in Redbird territory when the gun sounded.

It'll Be A Busy Day
Any team that lays back and allows the Kaw interference to form ahead of its numerous hard running backs is in for a very busy afternoon. The hardest charging team the Kaws met this season, Shawano gave them the most trouble.

Last Wednesday the Kaw regulars reached their peak in running up 31 points at West DePere. Their blocking was never better. Carl Giordana stood out again in the backfield, but Little's two sophomores, Willis Ranquette and Bob Danner, were not far behind. The high stepping Ranquette is proving himself hard to bring down in an open field, and Danner seems to accumulate more power each game as a line smasher. Four times this season, when inside the enemy ten, Danner, the short man, has taken the ball to crack through for a touchdown. Blocking Joe Renneffus at quarterback gives the Kaws one of the best backfields in conference history. George Steffen, Ralph Doering and Phelan Fernal are reserves that would be regulars on most conference teams.

Kaukauna — Herman Runte cracked out a 614 series, including a high game of 258, to take Fraternal league honors last weekend at Schell alleys. Runte's hitting failed to stop the league leading K. C. ## Public Debt of State and Its Subdivisions Is Equal to More Than $50 for Each Inhabitant

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Although they have retired some obligations in recent years, local units of government are still heavily in debt, the state tax commission showed today in releasing an analysis of state and local tax indebtedness in Wisconsin for 1938.

Based upon 1938 figures, which may have been increased this year, the public debt of the state and its subdivisions is equal to more than $50 per person for every man, woman and child in Wisconsin, the computation showed.

The total figure represented long term debt. Temporary loans of cities and other municipalities were omitted.

Deepest in the red are Wisconsin's 71 counties, who owed almost $73,000,000 as of 1938, the commission said. Ranking next are the cities, with $64,703,000. School districts are third with $5,062,176, villages follow with $4,286,000. Townships had outstanding obligations of $2,719,282, while the state government, which is constitutionally forbidden to borrow for ordinary purposes, still owes $1,183,700 which it borrowed to finance its participation in the Civil war more than 70 years ago.

High Road Debt

Significant enough, the items for which the debts were contracted do not yet reflect the changing emphasis in public expenditures within the state during the last decade.

Although welfare activities take the largest slice of the tax dollar today, the heaviest borrowing as shown in the tax commission table is by the counties for highway purposes. That single item now amounts to more than $26,000,000. All other public improvements of all units of government represent bonds outstanding of about $33,000,000.

Traditionally high in Wisconsin is public expenditure for education. That much money is borrowed for the fact that local governments today owe more than $27,000,000 on that account. Public buildings bonds represent a debt of almost $12,000,000, while relief, a heavy burden for cities and counties in recent years, has mounted to $13,000,000.

It is significant that the heaviest poor relief borrowings are not in the poor northern Wisconsin counties, which have been depending on the state funds for several years, but in the industrial counties, Milwaukee, Kenosha, Racine, LaCrosse, Douglas, and others.

Tax Receipts Drop

Despite the fact that tax receipts have dropped in recent years due to increasing delinquencies, cities and counties have succeeded in retiring a considerable amount of their obligations. City bonds were reduced from more than 76,000,000 in 1934 to $64,000,000 last year, while counties brought down their debt from $80,000,000 to $72,000,000 during the same period. Towns and villages increased their indebtedness, however, although their share of the total is relatively small. School districts succeeded in reducing their total slightly.

The indebtedness of the counties and cities of the northeastern Wisconsin, according to the tax commission's table, and the principal item represented in that indebtedness, are shown in the following tabular report:

Counties
Brown, $809,500, highways; Outagamie, $507,000, highways; Waupaca, $400,000, highways; Calumet, $1,165,000, highways; Shawano, $236,000, highways; Manitowish, $334,000, highways; Winnebago, $500,000, buildings.

Roosevelt First Choice of Democrats for 1940; Garner Leading Choice if FDR Declines to Run

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—As the national spotlight begins to turn once more to the tug-of-war of party politics, a nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion reveals two significant facts about present-day Democratic party sentiment:

First, despite the tradition against third terms, more than four Democrats in every five with opinions on this subject name Franklin D. Roosevelt as their choice for the Presidency in 1940. The survey reflects a substantial increase in the demand for President Roosevelt following the outbreak of the European war, and parallels the three-year peak in popularity.

Second, if President Roosevelt decides not to run for re-election, the leading popular choice is still Vice President John N. Garner, who has led the Institute's Democratic popularity surveys for the past 16 months.

After Mr. Garner in the Institute survey come four members of the President's Cabinet—Social Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Postmaster General James A. Farley and Attorney General Frank Murphy. These men occupy front positions in the field of Democratic eligibles today, but the survey shows that nearly two-thirds of the Democrats—many of them dark-horses—are also receiving consideration from sections of the party rank-and-file at this time. With seven months still to go until convention-time, and with President Roosevelt's own intentions unannounced, the popular sentiment of the party continues to be in a state of flux.

In its study of Democratic attitudes the Institute put the following questions to a nation-wide cross-section of those who voted for Roosevelt in 1936 or who now support him as President:

(1) Whom would you like to see elected President in 1940?
(2) If Roosevelt is not a candidate, whom would you like to see elected?

In both questions the voter was obliged to supply the name of his favorite, no lists or other suggestions being put forward by the field investigators. Interestingly enough, more than half of those interviewed were unable to say who their choice would be if President Roosevelt does not run, or were undecided on the question. Only about a third said they were undecided or without an opinion on the first question.

Roosevelt Leads Democratic Field

The striking degree to which President Roosevelt's name dominates the thinking of rank-and-file Democrats at the present time is shown in the answers to the first question. The replies of persons with opinions are:

	% Naming
1. President Roosevelt	83%
2. Vice President Garner	8
3. Paul V. McNutt	3
4. Cordell Hull	3
5. James A. Farley	1
All Others	2

Indeed the greatest political phenomenon of 1939 has probably been the recovery in President Roosevelt's popularity following the war in Europe and the President's assurances to the nation that the United States "must and can" stay out. In an Institute survey completed in late August, before the war broke out, only two Democrats in three, approximately, said they would vote for him if he ran for a third term. The pre-war political situation was reflected in the confidence of Republican voters that they would elect a GOP candidate in 1940 and in the belief of the majority that President Roosevelt could not be re-elected.

As the results of another Institute survey, published for the first time today, reveal, however, the country's thinking on both these points has apparently undergone a change. But it must be emphasized that President Roosevelt's gains have been registered during a period in which domestic politics have been virtually suspended. The opposition—including Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats—have been holding their fire, and it remains to be seen whether the president will retain his present dominating position in party and national politics once the neutrality law revisions have been disposed of and the attention of the public turned toward domestic issues.

War in Europe has apparently united the Democrats in congress and divided the Republicans, exactly reversing the situation that existed at the end of the regular session last summer.

Will the Democratic truce hold? That is one of the imponderables in the present situation. Vice President Garner, whose friends have opened offices for him in several states and coined the slogan, "Go With Garner, the American Way," still retains an impressive lead among rank-and-file Democrats if F. D. R. does not run. The vice president is the leading Democratic choice among voters reached in all sections of the country and in all income groups in the event that Mr. Roosevelt steps aside, the Institute survey shows.

Fire Results in $5,000 Damage

Wagon and Blacksmith Shop at Embarrass Are Razed by Flames

Clintonville — A loss of over $5,000 resulted from a fire at Embarrass early Saturday morning. The wagon shop and blacksmith shop belonging to Frank Frederick and William Zimmerman burned to the ground between 4 and 5 o'clock that morning. The fire was discovered by William Anton, who saw the flames from his home about a block away. The Clintonville fire department was summoned, but could not save the frame structure, as the flames had gained too much headway. Plenty of water was available from the Embarrass river nearby, and the firemen directed their efforts toward saving nearby buildings.

The blacksmith shop, operated by Zimmerman, was about 26 by 50 feet in size and the adjoining wood-working shop was about 32 by 56. All of the machinery, tools and finished products were totally destroyed. Mr. Frederick had also stored in the shop all of the screen windows from his residence which he had removed only a few days ago. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The owners plan to rebuild with a fireproof structure. The cause of the fire is undetermined, but it is thought to have been caused from electric wiring as there had been no fire in the forge or in any part of the building on Friday.

Board's Decision Raises Matter of Worker's Freedom

Telegraph Firm's Em- ployes' Group Termed 'Company Union'

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—The principle of democracy, so deeply cherished in the political world, was supposed to have been applied to the economic world in the enactment of the Wagner Labor Relations law. But a decision just rendered by the National Labor Relations board has raised the question of whether workers really have freedom of action in making their collective bargaining contract or whether the will of a government board in Washington may be imposed upon them to tell them what they can do.

Lawrence

Twenty years ago, the employees of the Western Union Telegraph company formed a union. The labor board says it is a "company union" in the sense that the employer is alleged to dominate it or help finance it. The law prohibits that type of company union, but does not forbid a union of employees wholly independent of the employer as well as of national unions. The only requirement is that the employer shall not interfere with the freedom of choice by the employees.

Then there arises a minority group of employees who want to form another union, usually to be affiliated or integrated with the A. F. of L. or the CIO. The first line of attack is to break down the independence of the union. The Wagner labor law furnishes a ready weapon. If proof can be offered that the independent union at one time—perhaps as far back as 20 years ago, long before the law was passed—was formed with the aid of the employer, it becomes tainted in the eyes of the labor board and is ordered to be "disestablished."

Must Refund Dues
For three years now, the labor board has been ordering "company unions" in various businesses to be disestablished. But now, in a case just decided, the board has ordered the employer to refund all the dues collected on behalf of the independent union through the company's deductions from pay roll each week since 1935. No consideration is given to the fact that the money may have been legitimately spent for the carrying on of the independent union's affairs. The workers have nothing to say about the labor board order and thus a relationship which grew up long before the Wagner act was passed is now held to be unlawful.

The penalty or remedy in this instance need not have been the one selected by the labor board. It could have selected another means of accomplishing the same end. That it had the right to impose a penalty of its own selection is conceded because the congress gave broad discretionary powers to the board to fix almost any economic punishment it pleases, subject to court review. But congress also has the right to amend the labor law and state specifically just what the penalties are to be.

Brings Up Question
In this and other instances, the question will arise why the labor board did not merely put the matter up to the workers by a secret ballot. If the employees felt that the existing independent union served their needs, they could say so in a ballot and give legal ratification to the existing union. If the workers

Training Course In Citizenship Is Being Mapped

Tentative Executive Com- mittee for County Has Been Selected

A tentative executive committee for the Outagamie County Citizenship Day program has been selected, according to Secretary Henry J. Van Straten, county superintendent of school. Van Straten and Ben J. Rohan, Appleton superintendent of schools and chairman of the program, have sent letters to the tentatively selected members, asking them to serve.

Plans call for training of a small group of teachers in a course of citizenship by a representative of the extension division of the state university. These trained teachers then will conduct classes for prospective citizens in training schools which will be held in the various political centers of the county. About 1,000 young people will be contacted, Van Straten said.

In compliance with a recent state law the young people of Wisconsin, who will be 21 years of age by May 19 of next year, are to be inducted into citizenship next spring. The induction ceremony will conclude the program of training and preparation of the new citizens during the winter months.

A meeting of school officials and various civic organization representatives in the county was held recently at which Rohan was elected chairman and the program outlined.

JUSTICE IN ILLINOIS

The administration of justice in Illinois has been sour and curdled for so long that it has created a numbness in the body politic, a sort of despair that nothing can be done about it.

It is not merely that political leaders control many judges and sometimes even write their opinions, as recent evidence has shown; it is not merely that the jury system has deteriorated into an effort to obtain the dullest and most irresponsible members of the community to decide cases; it is not merely that many leading law firms, practicing in the realm of criminal law, furnish a constant flow of evidence that their cases are presented after thorough schooling and training; but it is a combination of all these conditions that has resulted in practical immunity to anyone not too blatant but with a full purse or influential friends.

Evidence to support these conclusions may be obtained in the state to the south of us during almost any week. Week before last an officer after drinking copiously of fire water slammed his gun upon a bar in loud fashion. It was discharged and a bystander was killed. Ordinarily a verdict of manslaughter would follow wherever life and law were considered of more than passing moment, but the officer claimed he was in a "diabetic coma" and that sounded so deep and inspiring to the jury it promptly acquitted him. Last week two lawyers were tried on the charge of conspiring to obstruct justice by altering the personal appearance of one Heintz, a client accused of holdup. Their acquittal is not the startling thing. That must be anticipated when one puts up a solemn fight. But the prosecution wanted the testimony of Miss Christine Conzo, a stenographer who had been sent out for the bleach. She had disappeared after being punished for refusal to talk before the grand jury. Yet when the defense wanted her she was quickly ushered into the room and as quickly disappeared after giving her testimony. Patient work by the prosecutor found her working as a stenographer in the city traffic engineer's office although she was entered as a "day laborer" under the male name of Christ Conzo and received her pay through the Bureau of Streets.

Perjury is evidently so common in these Illinois trials that it is accepted as a matter of course. Hiding witnesses who happen to be of a nervous temperament and might prove untrustworthy on the stand is another common maneuver. If, perchance, a jury does appear that seems to have average intelligence, overt acts to influence or intimidate it are a common matter.

Illinois might learn something from New York, also a populous state with a great metropolis. Conditions there once paralleled those that now exist and radiate out of Chicago. It was recognized that first of all politics simply must be squeezed out of the judiciary. Since that time, a matter of 40 years or so, New York has presented the country with many illustrious judges who kept the ermine as clean as they found it. Only in the class of police magistrates has the deadening hand of political influence and corruption appeared in recent years in the empire state.

And Illinois needs legislation of the character that New York long since adopted, that will secure intelligence upon its juries instead of insuring the lack of it.

For the time being, however, there is less stability in the administration of justice in Illinois than any place upon this continent north of the Rio Grande.

A WARRANT FOR WEISBERG!

Morris Weisberg is a grizzled old confidence man wanted by the Chicago police on the charge of selling Benjamin Fish-bain, described as "the wealthy owner of a laundry," a money-making machine, represented, according to Fishbain's claim, "to convert $1 bills into $1,000 bills."

Here is the answer to California's prayer, the dream of the ham-and-egggers come true.

This Weisberg, instead of constantly running before the law, should be carefully housed and preserved. In Mr. Roosevelt's third term he will be a necessary part of the office of the Secretary of the Treasury.

MUSSOLINI BANISHES MACHIAVELLI

Not long ago Roman librarians were ordered by the Fascist authorities to discontinue circulation of books by Machiavelli, that cynical Florentine diplomat who wrote so coldly of the complete callousness that motivated medieval statesmanship.

This edict is extraordinary since Mussolini has been an avowed worshiper at the devilish shrine of Machiavellian statecraft even, as he admits, during his Socialist days.

As late as 1924 Mussolini wrote a thesis on "Machiavelli and the Prince." This followed shortly after he was presented with a sword engraved with Machiavelli's renowned motto, "States are not maintained by words." At that time Il Duce wrote:

"I have wished to place the fewest possible intermediaries, Italian or foreign, between Machiavelli and myself, so as not to spoil the direct contact between his doctrine and my life as I have lived it, between his observations and mine of men and things, between his method of government and mine. What I have the honor to read to you, therefore, is no frigid scholastic dissertation; it is rather in the nature of a dramatic piece, if, as I believe, we may regard as dramatic the attempt to throw a spiritual bridge across the abyss of the generations and of the world's events."

Further in this dissertation Il Duce selected and quoted with direct approval those utterances of Machiavelli which put the lowest possible opinion upon mankind, such for instance as this:

"Our experience has been that those Princes who have done great things have held good faith of little account and have known how to circumvent the intellect of men by craft, and in the end have overcome those who relied on their word."

He who likes to take isolated facts of this kind and weave them into a pattern may see in the ban upon these works an abandonment by Italy of its crafty and ruthless diplomatic career. The Brenner Pass and what lies to the north, the marching legions, the smoking towns, the hospital trains, the crepe bands on mother's arms, and finally the mob sacking the palace and chasing the faithless ruler out into the wilds where he belongs, all this may have been foreseen by the Roman tyrant as he tossed Machiavelli's soulless pages in the corner in disgust.

Questions provoked by this news item and printed in the London Post are appropriate:

"Is the Duce a Daniel come to judgment or a sinner come to repentance? Or is he a reed shaken by the rising wind?"

THE HUNTER AND THE FARMER

A Brown county sportsmen's organization recently discussed, with considerable heat, an old problem for which no one has yet brought forward an adequate solution. Because this is Wisconsin, a state which prizes its outdoors sports facilities on their own merits and also recognizes the economic possibilities of recreation as an industry, relations between the hunter and the farmer assume a special importance.

The sportsman argues with the sympathy of most of us that game is a public resource. He is deeply resentful when the state conservation department which he supports with his license fees plants pheasants on farm lands which are posted by the farmer when the shooting season opens. The effect, he complains, is to provide a private shooting preserve for that farmer with sportsmen's money.

But the farmer replies, with equal vigor and self-justification, that there is no possible advantage for him, and much possible loss, in allowing hunters unrestricted access to his fields and woodlots. Moreover, he has a natural and understandable aversion to the sound of shot whizzing over his head. Vandals, he has found, are still abroad.

So more and more farmers each year are posting their acres, and more hunters every year are grumbling.

The answer, it seems to us, is a system of public hunting grounds, particularly in those areas of relatively heavy urban population bounded by farm sections, such as our own.

The state conservation department during the last session of the legislature had the support of some organized sportsmen in the sponsorship of a hunting grounds bill. Tax-shy legislators, however, killed the proposal to finance the plan by doubling hunting license fees.

The conservation department during the 15 months before the next legislature convenes can prove the merit of the idea by appropriating a small part of what is certainly a generous budget for a demonstration project. When the majority of the 250,000 or more sportsmen who are supporting the department's game protection and propagation work are convinced, it will be easy to convince the legislature.

Perhaps at the 1941 session a moderate increase in the amount of the license charge may be agreed upon for an extension of the plan.

Opinions of Others

THE DIGNITY OF MAN
For 20 centuries men of all shades of religious conviction have agreed that only by man-develop his dignity as a human being can man live at peace with his neighbor. Agnostics and outright skeptics have fought for this principle of the inalienability of the individual on material grounds.

Today we find this principle challenged by a concept of government which tells us that the human being is unimportant. The state, according to this doctrine, is the beginning and the end of everything. Man has no dignity, no inalienable rights as a human being. The state does not exist for him; he exists for it.

In view of this challenge, the first encyclical of Pope Pius XII will be applauded by men of

DALE HARRISON'S

In Old New York

New York—The moving picture industry is never quite so stupid, I think, as when it tries to junk a film into public favor. It spends a lot of useless dollars, and about all anyone gets from the adventure is a hangover.

Late in October it was my tough luck to sit in on two movie world premieres. In the last six months there have been others. Hardly without exception these affairs are carried off by the picture companies with almost criminal extravagance, and all to very little end.

Every picture, like every play, must have a premiere—a first time. Generally the events are arranged without much fuss. Most of them are either in Hollywood or New York. If the picture happens to be something special, the exploitation departments of the film companies roll out the bright lights and try to make a social and theatrical event of it. Prominent people are invited to attend. Crowds gather to stare at celebrities. Cameramen move industriously about, flashing pictures that seldom see the light of publication.

Within the last year it has become a vogue to hold picture premieres in other cities. The movie "Dodge City," for instance, bowed to a bored world at Dodge City, Kansas, because the bright young men of the exploitation department thought this would create general interest in the picture itself. "Union Pacific" was premiered in Omaha, Neb., which is headquarters for the Union Pacific Railroad. "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" bowed, quite naturally, in Washington. "Young Mr. Lincoln" was tossed to the public first at Springfield, Ill., where Lincoln lived and died.

Other out-of-town premieres have had far less reason. "Honeymoon in Bali" was premiered not in Bali but in, of all places, Wheeling, W. Va. The movie company explained that one by pointing out that one of the performers in the picture was a four-year-old girl, Carolyn Lee, whose home was in Wheeling. It neglected to mention that Carolyn Lee had lived in Wheeling a mere six months and was virtually unknown there.

The most mystifying of all premieres was that of "Disputed Passage" in Detroit. That was one without rhyme or reason. The picture has nothing to do with automobiles—in fact, unique in that there isn't a single automobile in it—yet the geniuses of Paramount Pictures chose to tie up the picture's premiere with automobiles.

I happened to be in Detroit for a few hours on the day of the premiere, and it was no fun. The hotel was filled with people who had been brought to town to give the premiere a "smash" build-up. Dorothy Lamour was flown in from Hollywood at the last moment when it became apparent that a splash of exotic charm was needed to spice things up. She was met at the airport by a police escort and was driven to the hotel behind motorcycle cops whose sirens blared not so much to clear the way as to trumpet the arrival of a Hollywood queen. Even with all the straining for public attention, there weren't a dozen people around to "mob" the lady for her autograph or to shout "Hail the Queen." I felt sorry for her. It wasn't her doing. It was somebody's pathetic ideal for stimulating box office.

I understand that M-G-M, refusing to take a lesson from the experiences of the other companies, will premiere "Gone With the Wind" at Atlanta, the home of its authoress, Margaret Mitchell. I hope they don't run into such a situation as was the case at Springfield, Ill., when "Young Mr. Lincoln" was premiered last Memorial Day.

The exploiters had engaged Marion Anderson, the colored singer, for the occasion, having in mind, I suppose, that Lincoln freed the slaves. Accommodations were sought for her at a hotel named after the great Emancipator, but there was no room for her there; nor was there room at any other Springfield hotel. As a last resort, Marian Anderson found lodging at a private home.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent during the year on these premieres. Special trains have carried movie critics and editors from both seaboard to the premiere cities, and for what? I'll bet the picture companies don't even know themselves.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Monday, Nov. 4, 1929
Trading on the New York securities exchange returned to a normal basis that day after a wild outburst of selling at the opening. Early that afternoon the ticker tape caught up with the market for the first time since the disastrous break of Thursday, Oct. 24. The markets were shut down the preceding Friday and Saturday. The Simpson-Parker Construction company had started pouring concrete under the Chicago and North Western railway tracks at the E. Wisconsin avenue crossing and the subway was expected to be open to traffic about Nov. 25.

Miss Vesper Chamberlain, Appleton was to open a dancing school at the Odd Fellows hall Wednesday.

Lawrence college gridders came from behind Saturday afternoon to beat Hamline, 20 to 12. The Appleton High school squad eked out a 7 to 6 win over West Green Bay.

25 YEARS AGO

Monday, Nov. 9, 1911

A boat club was organized the previous day at a meeting of several West End motorboat owners and the building formerly occupied by the Kriek Boat works had been rented for a temporary clubhouse. Officers elected were John Gilsdorf, president; Carl Tennie, secretary; William Storm, treasurer.

Nearly 150 delegates from Menasha, Oshkosh, Kaukauna, Green Bay, DePere, New London and Marshfield attended the Fourth district German Roman Catholic Benevolent society of Wisconsin meeting held the previous afternoon at St. Joseph's hall.

The German offensive was renewed at Ypres and Dixmunde. The Russian Black sea fleet had left Sevastopol and bombarded Kosly and Sugla. Germans had imposed a $10,000,000 tax against Antwerp.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

A WALK IN THE WOODS

To walk in the woods on an autumn day.
To feel the sting of the frosty air
Is a very wonderful kind of way
To banish care.

The road of the future is insecure;
The birds of summer have spread their wings.
But the present path through the woods is sure.
A cricket sings.

The twilight calls and a star swings high.
Through misty boughs the moon will peer,
And my heart leaps up to behold the sky,
Steadfast and clear.

Good will everywhere in the Western world
To consider the state something ultimate,
To which everything else should be subordinated,
Said His Holiness, "cannot fail to harm the true lasting prosperity of nations."

Only the mentally blind can fail to perceive that totalitarianism destroys both human dignity and material welfare by one and the same method.—DePere Journal.

A Bystander

In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The radio industry is confronted with a tough public relations problem since it adopted the code under which it refuses to sell time for the broadcasting of controversial speeches.

Grover
ularly has the CIO charged the National Association of Broadcasters sponsor of the new code, with an attempt to destroy freedom of speech.

For the broadcasters, it is a thorny case. They announced that their purpose was to protect freedom of speech, not to destroy it. They proposed in their code, effective Oct. 1, to do two things:

1. Sell no more time for discussion of controversial issues (except to politicians in political campaigns.)

2. Organize "forums" where time would be given free to all sides to argue questions of public interest. The station owners reserved to themselves the right to determine what are "questions of public interest."

Their position is that if they sell radio time for controversial discussions, the people with money will hog the time, to the disadvantage of people with a good case but no money.

CIO Broadcasts Ended

Here is a typical reaction. Station WJW of Akron, operated by Miss Edythe Fern Melrose, has been selling time regularly for CIO broadcasts. Under terms of the code, she has told CIO that she won't any more.

"That's fair," says CIO, and announces plans to take the case to the federal communications commission. The protest of the labor group is that air time is sold to Akron's tire manufacturers and other industrialists over the country to build up public good will for their products and for industry. The labor group, however, must wait until radio time is some free time on a "forum" where the industrialists share alike the right to hit back.

Miss Melrose of Akron's WJW says she is already giving way ten free periods of 15 minutes each daily to such organizations as the American Legion, community chest, ministerial association, WPA and Federal Housing, and naturally won't have an unlimited amount of time to give away to "forums" on CIO issues.

Case of Father Coughlin

The case of Father Coughlin has not become nearly so heated out in the open but is seething underneath. Time on the air of more than 40 stations is bought for Father Coughlin's weekly speeches. Aircasters Inc., handles the business. The National Association of Broadcasters finds Coughlin is exactly a case in point. No one would deny he talks on controversial issues.

Nor is the argument all on one side. The Coughlin broadcast is a plump piece of business for stations sharing it. For instance, the 17 stations on the Colonial network in New England get a sum estimated as high as $50,000 a year. Yet the network stations are members of the National Association whose code says "no."

On the other hand, the broadcasters recognize Father Coughlin as a subject of "public interest" and so entitled to free time on the air. How much? The board of directors of the association is discussing that now, along with other questions raised by Father Coughlin's agent. Just to help tangle up the case the American Federation of Labor, in contrast to CIO, thinks the new radio code is excellent.

Just a Step

Behind the News

By Dave Boone

On Tuesday, they vote on "ham and eggs" in California and "nags in New York." The only egg question in New York is whether the bookmakers will lay one.

In California, it's the $30 every Thursday" plan to have the state give $30 in coupons to unemployed people over 50, the coupons to be accepted for merchandise, etc., and the state to hold the bag. It's all pretty dizzy stuff, and nothing makes it seem any dizzier than the fact that Doc Townsend and Upton Sinclair are against it as "impracticable."

The danger about "ham and eggs" plans is that everybody ultimately finds the eggs have been sucked dry and that the ham is just artificial bacon from synthetic pigs.

In New York, there is no pig issue. It's just a matter of hot and cold horses and the best way to bet on 'em. Muttels have been adopted just about everywhere except in Gotham, where there is still a Civil war touch to everything connected with the horse races. I never go to a race there without expecting somebody to point out General Grant's box and General Sheridan's horse.

I see where the radio has been drawn into that City of Flint episode. Bergen's involved now, and they may drag in Charlie McCarthy next.

SPENDS SAVINGS

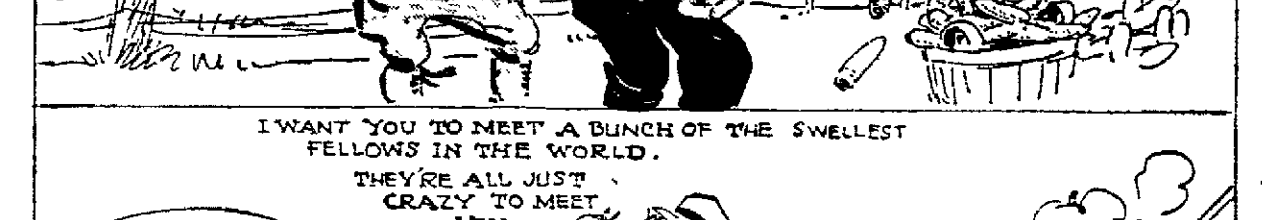

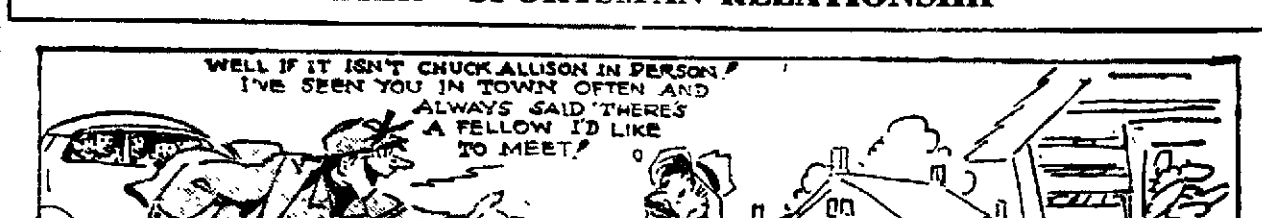

Seymour, Ind. —(P)—Martin Reuter of near Seymour and Louise Shoemaker of Valonia went to the county clerk's office for a marriage license.

The license cost $2 and a fancy wedding certificate $3.

Reuter counted out a nickel, 27 dimes and 225 pennies and remarked, "I've got enough change left to pay the preacher and buy the cigars."

He explained he's been saving his small coins for the occasion since New Year's day.

"FARMER - SPORTSMAN RELATIONSHIP"

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WINGARD

Madison—The most important question in the capitol today is and will continue to be the condition of the state treasury.

Department clerks and stenographers, capitol square business men, even university students and instructors who rarely gave state financial matters a thought in previous years, are now watching eagerly and reading with care the monthly reports of the state treasurer and the quarterly audit reports of the secretary of state.

And what they find in those reports gives them little consolation.

REPUBLICAN LUCK

Republicans these days are complaining that the first victory in the party's up-hill climb gave them a governor who isn't exactly becoming famous for his aptitude for public office, and a financial problem which is almost too big for a satisfactory solution—politically satisfactory, that is.

For the Republican administration today is impaled squarely on the twin horns of what they are sorrowfully recognizing as an impossible political dilemma.

They can enact new taxes, and court political disaster next year. They can eke out the treasury assets by postponing, or actually defaulting, on some of the state aids and state-collected taxes which are owed to municipalities.

It is hard to say which is the easiest course, and probably as hard for the administration to choose.

But it is unlikely that there will be any severe new tax program, for the pretty obvious reason that the legislators who were elected with Julius P. Heil will have none of it.

THE PROSPECT

Thus, as the situation appears to capitol observers today, local units of government will find that the state checks which the law says they may expect during the forthcoming winter months will not arrive. In addition, when the treasury is drained a little more, there will be forced lay-offs in some capitol departments.

Defaulting or state aids is hardly a more pleasant prospect than passing new taxes. It will open up to the opposition a tailor-made opportunity for charging the Republicans with all kinds of negligence, for failing to provide for local charities, for penalizing the educational system, and the worst of all political sins, causing an increase in property taxes. It takes no prophet to predict that the Progressives will be saying about the Heil government next year.

REALISM GROWING

Yet the recognition of the fact that any political party would have found itself in a peculiarly unpleasant position in the capitol this year is spreading.

As a matter of fact, if Governor Heil were immediately to attempt to explain this circumstance of the treasury as he found them, why he found it impossible to reduce large chunks of the state budget, why the treasury balance is low, it might have beneficial results, might tend in some measure to counteract the effects of the state deficit when it begins to make itself felt.

And for the sake of realism, it might as well be said that whoever is elected governor in 1940 is going to find a job before him even harder than that now facing Mr. Heil. For if Heil succeeds in "postponing" certain state obligations, the day of reckoning will fall in the next administration. From all appearances,

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

POTASSIUM FOR ALLERGY

In many instances, not all, common ailments which are generally due to allergy, such as hay fever, pollinosis, eczema, frequent or recurring hives (urticaria), asthma, giant hives (angioneurotic edema), chronic sinusitis and periodic sick headaches ushered in with aura (migraine), are much relieved by small doses of potassium salts taken dissolved in plenty of water.

Most suitable for this purpose is potassium chloride, and fair dose of this is ten grains in nearly a glassful of water, three times a day, preferable after food.

The relief obtained from this is felt within a few hours as a rule. It has been found to be possible to prevent allergic reactions to foods to which the individual happens to be sensitive if a dose of potassium chloride is taken before or about the same time the food is taken.

Individuals who have kidney or heart trouble should not take potassium salts except under direction of the physician.

The remedy is not efficacious in chronic asthma, but only in the occasional asthmatic attacks which sometimes accompany it.

Potassium chloride in ten-grain tablets especially prepared for dissolving readily in water are convenient. It is a mistake to take potassium chloride as a tablet unless it is dissolved in plenty of water it is likely to cause gastric irritation and nausea.

The effects of potassium chloride are somewhat similar to those of epinephrin (adrenalin). In fact some investigators believe the effects of epinephrin (adrenalin) are actually produced by potassium mobilization when the epinephrin causes the epinephrin liberates potassium from the tissues. These investigators conclude that epinephrin or adrenalin loses its effectiveness against such conditions as hay fever, hyperesthetic rhinitis, asthma and the like when the tissues have been depleted of potassium. It would seem, then, that an occasional dose of potassium chloride should be helpful.

Many correspondents have complained that there is no potassium chloride available, or that druggists insist there is some mistake and they probably do not have any other potassium salt which the druggist has.

This is not so. Potassium chloride is supplied by numerous reputable pharmaceutical houses to the drug trade.

Physicians have learned in the past twenty years that the new developments I herald to the public are not, after all, mere pipe dreams, but that I must tell the public about such things before the rank and file are sufficiently informed. Else the doctor and now let the pharmacist think twice before they decide I'm talking thru my hat! I don't wear a hat.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Hormone Treatment

I am 64 and for about three years have had gradually increasing frequency at night, which my doctor says is due to enlargement of prostate. I think you mentioned some kind of hormone treatment which is beneficial in some cases. (W. A.)

Answer—Estrogen (anterior pituitary-like hormone) has brought about considerable improvement, in some cases—a daily hypodermic injection of an ampoule for a few weeks, then larger doses by mouth for a few months. Testosterone also has been given with considerable success, but that isn't going to enter a lot of ambitious men from entering the lists against Wisconsin's present governor next year.

Sleep Ration

I am 19. Five years ago I was adjudged the healthiest boy in our district. I think I person who spends eight hours out of twenty-four (one-third of his life) in sleep is wasting time. I work in an office in the day, attend night school in the evening twice weekly, get a lot of exercise. I think six, or at most seven hours sleep in enough for me. (J. C. P.)

Answer—Possibly you are right. Joe, but for most young people nine hours sleep is not too much. However, if you continue on your short sleep ration for a considerable period I hope you will write a report later on how you are doing—for the benefit of our readers.

Impervious Hide

Your opinion on vitamin D incorporated in a cream or fat and massaged into the skin, to improve health of the cuticle. (Mrs. S. T.)

Answer—So far as the vitamin effect is concerned you might as well massage it into the garage roof. However, supplementing the diet with vitamins may improve the condition and appearance of the skin in some instances—vitamin A, vitamin D, vitamin G (or riboflavin, B-2, as in the B-complex) particularly.

Potassium Chloride

Never had a more comfortable hay fever season than I had this year, using potassium chloride as you suggested. Relief was so marked after only four doses that I could hardly believe it. Most of the season I took one dose a day—sometimes two doses. I would advise any one subject to hay fever to give this simple treatment a trial. (H. M. H.)

Answer—Not only hay fever, but allergic rhinitis, some cases of asthma, sinusitis, sinus headaches, respond remarkably to this treatment. Do not take tablets or capsules—only a solution of potassium chloride in water should be taken. Usual dose, twenty grains daily—five or ten grains dissolved in water each dose. Some persons require more, some less. If no relief in a few days, no use continuing the treatment. If any relief, the treatment is harmless to continue to repeat as needed. It is not a cure; merely a palliative for the disagreeable symptoms. Do not accept any other remedy than potassium chloride. If this is not clear, send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for using.

Hernia

Dad is receiving injection treatment for hernia from Dr. — of our town with the advice of Dr. — of —. We are all very well pleased. (M. S.)

Answer—The modern treatment of hernia is now in use by the better physicians everywhere. The doctor who has the temerity to dismiss inquiries about the injection treatment with the assurance that it is "no good," dangerous or "has been tried and failed," is simply deceiving his patient with a petty desire to mask his own backwardness in the profession.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only "inquiries" of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, 255 E. Canine, South, Beverly Hills, Cal.

Beauty and You

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

Play hours in fresh air and proper menus will do much to make your child strong and beautiful.

Most of us can recall that in our youth we were told to stand up straight and keep your shoulders back! Whenever we slumped someone would tell us "Straighten your shoulders!" We resented it of course, and at times we slumped just to be obstinate, but the adult or adults who thus checked our poor posture thought they were doing their duty. According to more modern theories they were making a mistake.

Dr. Armitage Whitman, orthopedic surgeon, cautions mothers or guardians not to nag at children with poor posture or a friendly relationship will be impaired and the child will not be helped.

"Never tell your child to stand up straight until you are sure he can stand up straight!" he claims. "Many a relationship has been ruined because a child had a stiff back and couldn't stand up straight. He will very shortly develop hatred and resentment against the adult who is constantly nagging him to do something that he cannot do."

"There is a sufficiently large number of cases of this kind—stiff back—occurring among adolescents to make the lack of expert examination a very real danger. If no orthopedic surgeon is available to make the examination, strip the child and have him lie flat on his face on the floor, his feet under the radiator, or held down by something similar. Then have him see how far he can raise his body off the floor. He should be able thus to extend his spine almost forty-five degrees. If he cannot do so, an examination by a doctor is essential. If the doctor can find no actual disease to account for the stiffness, it must be overcome by manipulations, or by recumbency upon a convex stretch frame, before any treatment of exercises should be taken."

Primary Importance

More and more all authorities on health and beauty are stressing the need for better posture from our first walking steps or corrected poor posture if we are mature. Just why is good posture so vital, you may ask and here is Dr. Whitman's simple and clear explanation:

"From the physiological standpoint it is desirable to stand up straight. We must think of the body as an accordion, inside of which are placed rare and perishable fruits. The accordion is stood on end. As long as it is held extended to its greatest length there will be ample space inside it for the fruits and they will not come into damaging contact with each other. When you get tired of holding the accordion extended it would collapse, to the immediate detriment of whatever was inside."

"With a stick placed inside the accordion it would be held permanently expanded but we have no stick. We have, however, a spine, which is flexible. It is composed of bones, held together by ligaments, and held erect, (when it is so held) by muscles. When it is pulled out to its nearly as possible its greatest length the chest is expanded, the back is flat and the abdomen is contracted."

"So now, my dears, you know why I want you to have good posture! And I hope each mother will feel it her duty to check on the condition of her child's spine."

Preaching Respect for Elders To Children Is of Little Use

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Derry, dear, you should never talk to grandpa that way. He is so old, poor grandpa. He feels so bad, poor old grandpa. You don't want to hurt your poor old grandpa, do you, Derry?"

"Nope," said Derry, shaking his curly head emphatically, "but he didn't seem so old as that when I was talking to him. He seemed very smart, mother. He said to me, 'You stop that young air, or I'll warm your behind,' so I just answered back, 'Try and do it.'"

"M-m-p," said mother. "Well, run along now, and remember, always speak nicely to grandpa. He is older than you are, you know. It isn't nice to talk to grandpas as if they were little boys like yourself, you know."

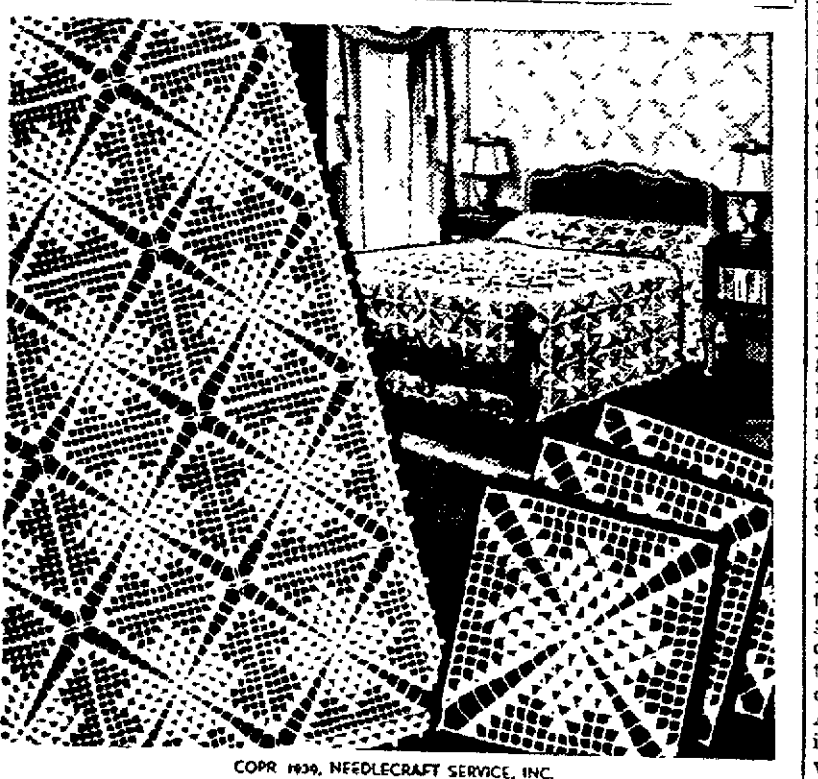

No, of course, it isn't. And it isn't nice for grandpa to call a small person "young sir," and threaten spankings, either. But that is the way it is and, I imagine, always will be between the very young and the very old, and they manage to get along fairly well, at that.

What struck me about the affair was mother's "poor old grandpa." Grandpas and grandmas do not like to be called old, nor poor old, either. Then don't feel themselves objects of commiseration to their grandchildren. Nor do they want consideration on those terms. They would much rather be checked than pitied. But why either?

Why cannot little children learn to respect their grandparents as people worthy of their affection and respect? There is no reason. A child will respond to, "Want to walk with grandfather?" He says he will be glad to have you. And he did say he was thinking of going to look at the new

And if grandpa, or grandma, talked to the grandchildren as though they were people worthy of their regard instead of the infants they seem to be, that would at once set the children's attitude. The children dislike being made to feel little, and young, and to-be-bossed just as

Groundwork Is Necessary for Squeeze Plays

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Most players seem to feel that certain types of plays are extremely easy, while other types are equally difficult. This is a fallacy. Granting that the average squeeze play is more involved than the average holdup play, elimination and throw-in play, or unblocking maneuver, it still is a fact that the preparations, or ground laying, of these latter coups often requires vivid imagination as well as sound technique. For example, it is doubtful that even experts would conduct the defense successfully in the following hand:

North, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds
2 no tr/p	Pass	3 no tr/p	Pass

East opened the spade jack. Declarer won in his own hand and played the ace and queen of hearts. East winning. Another spade was led, declarer again winning in his own hand. Now, before playing out his hearts (declarer could not be sure that the ten was going to drop), declarer led the club king. East won and, feeling that his last entry had been taken out, did not persist with spades, but returned a heart, hoping to establish a possible thirteenth heart in his partner's hand. However, declarer now was able to concede another club trick and thereby establish his own fourth club, which gave him his contract "under wraps."

At a matter of fact, even if East, after taking the lead with the club ace, had plugged away at spades for the third time, a little care on declarer's part would have produced the same result. Winning with dummy's spade ace, declarer should lead a club. If west plays low, declarer's queen would win and a club return would throw west on lead with the jack—East could not get in for his long spades. If, on the club lead from dummy, West put up the jack, declarer would merely let him hold the trick, with the same result.

All of which leads to the conclusion that more heroic measures were required to beat this contract. This brings us to the crucial phase of the hand. Notice the vast difference in result if, in declarer's play of the club king (which East wins with the ace), West jettisons his club jack, getting it out of the way forever. Now, struggle as he will, declarer cannot establish nine tricks for himself without surrendering the lead to East's club ten. (Obviously, East clears his spade suit after winning with the club ace and seeing West's unblock of the club jack.)

I do not know how many players there are who are capable of the suggested defense. But there is at least one thing to be said for this type of analysis: It reveals the true potentialities of bridge and gives us all a goal for which to strive.

much as the elderly folk dislike being called old, and made to feel helpless. If each is allowed to be a person in his own right, both will be happier. It is not necessary to talk down to the children, nor is it necessary to behave to the older folk as though there was something extraordinary the matter with them. Age is not an illness, nor even a hindrance in most of us. It just is. Preaching respect for elders to little children is about the most useless form of instruction one can imagine. Children respect old and young alike, and on the same grounds—mutual regard. If there is no sympathy between people, regardless of their ages there is no respect. Formal courtesy is not respect. It is only an imposed gesture. Respect is the expression of voluntary appreciation of another's personality.

Just allow that grandpa and grandma are people like the rest of the world and there will be little trouble with the grandmas are people like the rest of the world. They know people when they see them and their judgment of them is wonderfully accurate. And don't hurt the grands by calling them Poor and Poor Old. Even when you add, Dears to the Pows you affront them. Just accept them as they stand.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

There are four dangerous ages in life, for a boy friend to escort her to further parties and dances, and her moral training, she succumbed on the third date.

She tried to save her conscience by saying they were in love and would be married soon, though he had said nothing of any wedding.

How To Be Stupid

If you girls intend to be dumb, then just listen to the glib sales talk which most men will give you.

If you will not heed the advice of your parents or your own better judgment when you are in your right minds, then read this column, which is simply a contemporary laboratory in human behavior.

If you cannot win a husband without permitting premarital sexual liberties, then you are simply reducing your charm to a lustful or sensory sort.

And the first better looking girl who comes along will take him away from you. You'll meanwhile live in constant dread, knowing that your hold on the man is simply a physical attraction, and every year you live, your physical appeal will be waning.

When you marry, you should look for permanent happiness. I admit that the sexual side of marriage is very important. But it requires months of marriage before husband and wife are sexually compatible.

Trial marriages or premarital experiments are doubly foolish, therefore, since they prove nothing but the medical and psychological ignorance of those who are willing to become guinea pigs for such experimentation.

How To Be Happy in Marriage

The Bible tells an interesting story about Esau, whose stomach hunger was so great that he sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. Many girls will laugh in superior disdain at his stupidity.

But, like Sally, they'll also sell out their chance for happiness simply because they're afraid of missing the junior prom or of being thought less attractive than their high school classmates.

Remember, the average girl doesn't marry her first boy friend, though she may think it impossible to live without him while she is in the midst of that romance.

Why suffer ill health, pregnancy or venereal disease and disgrace as the price of a few adolescent dates? Use your heads and you'll find true happiness.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime to cover postage. Write your name, address and telephone number when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Women Are Easily Deluded

This older youth had a couple of dates with Sally. He began to demand more liberties than she wanted to grant.

Because he had taken her to a couple of school dances, where she had proudly shown him off and she had begun to take a proprietary interest in him, she felt crushed at the thought of being cast aside.

What would her girl friends say? How could she explain her failure to hold her man?

In her mental turmoil, torn between her desire for social approval of the older boys in the small town where she lived had showed some interest in her.

This was doubly flattering, for she had never had many dates, being somewhat shy and not well versed in masculine psychology. She admitted that she couldn't carry on an interesting conversation.

Then the fact that this fellow was 20, also inflated her pride. Her classmates were dating boys of only 17 or 18!

Many Mothers Do Not Teach Daughters to be Good Wives

BY DOROTHY DIX

Every woman is an enigma, but when you consider a woman who is also the mother of girls, you have the world's prize conundrum that no one can guess. For by no plausible theory can any one explain why mothers rear their daughters as they do; why they deliberately unfit them for the lives they are predestined to live; and more particularly why, since every mother wants her daughters to marry, she does not teach them the first elements of being good wives.

Every woman of average intelligence, who has had thirty-five or forty years' experience and observation of life, and who has been through the crucial adjustments of marriage herself, knows just about what every girl has to expect of life and of marriage.

She knows that life is never easy for women and that for them to succeed in any career, whether domestic or professional, takes courage and stamina and self-control and industry. But does she try to breed these qualities in her daughters? Not at all. She stifles herself and brings failure and misery on her girl by believing that somehow her Mamie is going to escape the common fate and everything is just going to be fine for her.

If you don't believe this assertion, consider the way you are bringing up your girls. Consider the way your friends are bringing up theirs. How many little girls do you know who are being taught to control their tempers? How many little girls do you know who are being taught any habits of order and to keep their own clothes and rooms neat and clean? How many have any household chores that they have to perform every day? How many are being made to finish anything they start?

How many adolescent girls do you know who can cook a decent meal? How many can make a dress? How many know how to market? How many can get their money's worth out of a dollar? Some, of course, but the number of girls whose mothers teach them any of the practical things that every woman needs to know is pitifully small. It isn't the girl's fault when she lies on a couch and reads a love story while Mother does the family laundry and cooking and scrubbing. It is the mothers who won't let Mabel put her beautifully manicured red fingernails in dish water.

It isn't daughter's fault when she walks down the street dolled up like Mrs. Solomon in all her glory, while Mother trails behind in the old suit she has worn for the last five years. It is Mother's fault because she has taught Mabel that she was the one who should have the best of everything and whose every taste and desire must be satisfied, no matter how any one else suffered.

It is because mothers prepare their daughters for divorce instead of marriage that we have so many broken homes. Mabel marries and then the trouble begins, for when Mabel's husband finds out that she doesn't know how to cook a decent meal, that she keeps a house that looks like a cyclone had passed through it and that she is running him in debt with her extravagance he says things that don't sound like love talk.

When Mabel finds out that her husband expects her to act like an adult human being and pull her weight in the boat, and that he

BEHAVIOR AT A DANCE

Dear Mrs. Post: The other night I went to a dance with Robert, my special boy friend. We danced the first dance together. Then another girl asked me to dance, and I danced with him. That made Robert furious. He is very jealous, anyhow, and he sulks the rest of the evening. He said I had no business dancing with another boy unless I asked his permission. I told him that I had never heard of such a thing, and that even if a boy does call for a girl, they are both supposed to dance with other people. The dance was a regular dance at the club we all belong to. I was right, wasn't I, Mrs. Post?

Answer: At any private or club dance you would of course be expected to dance with every one who asks you, and under no circumstances would you ask any one's permission. On the other hand, if you had gone with Robert to a restaurant where people dance, and John Jones, let's say, had come to your table and asked you to dance, it would have been inconsiderate of you to leave your host sitting alone at the table. (Asking his permission would not have made any difference.) However, if Robert had himself invited John to sit at your table, then the latter would naturally have been expected to dance, not too often, or for too long, but from time to time.

Junior's Company Manners

Dear Mrs. Post: My wife and I have different ideas about company manners to be expected of a six-year-old child. I would greatly appreciate your opinion on this question. In the first place, I think Junior wants to be polite, always, but he is a shy sort of child, who hates to talk to strangers. Yet, whenever we have guests, his mother makes him come in and say "How do you do" to every one, and then when it is time for him to go to bed she insists that he come in again and bid every one good night. Last night we had a large party and my wife called out to him: "Junior! Come and say good night!" He made no answer and she repeated it louder. He called back "I won't!" She then went upstairs and succeeded in forcing him to come down and say good night to every one. I said nothing before people, but after they had gone and he almost had a quarrel—and then we were asked your advice as to whether or not he may be spared the ordeal of saying good night, at least until he's a little older.

Answer: While it is excellent training to encourage a child to come in and greet company and to say good night to company, I agree with you that too much of a point should not be made of it. If he is there are so many nice girls around? Such a girl can only drag you down to her level and ruin your prospects in life.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

YESTERDAY: Buff suggests that George offer to buy back the land at the price Iris paid. If Iris accepts, she's on the level, but if she refuses, she probably has another buyer.

The Drama Chapter 25

Buff hated her task. Her open, forthright nature rebelled against what amounted to spying upon Iris. But Tim, she reminded herself again and again, had to be saved from this second and far more dangerous plot.

"And after I've yanked him out of her clutches, he can sink or swim, lose his way or keep to the straight and narrow path," said Miss Carroll with a fine scrambling metaphor. "He'll hate me even more than he does now if he knows I've snatched him from the burning. Well, that's all right too. Just so I spring the trap before it closes on me. He doesn't matter about me." She rather spoiled the thoughtfully altruistic sentiment she was trying to express by a sigh that seemed to rise from her small custom-made brogues.

She had known Iris from the first to be almost pitifully lacking in brains, entirely lacking in subtlety. She was like a movie extra who went through her small part with conscientious accuracy. For two days she was very much the engaged girl, staying close to the hotel save when she appeared radiant and shyly happy in Tim's car. Buff kept doggedly behind them, feeling that there was a cross between an international spy and a jealous schoolgirl.

But the third morning brought important results. Tim's car was parked near the hotel when Buff arrived. Evidently he had left it there for Iris to use. About ten she came out, wearing the new fur coat which had made its appearance in the last few days, and headed for Denver. Buff trailed her excitedly.

Iris drove in character, the younger girl thought, putting on little spurts of speed exactly at the wrong time, slowing down in the middle of busy traffic, making use of hand signals which would have puzzled the most expert motorist; but eventually she drew up in front of a small hotel in the city, miraculously finding a parking place.

Buff was not so fortunate. By the time she had disposed of her car and entered the lobby, Iris was nowhere to be seen. There was nothing for it but to wait for her. Buff selected an inconspicuous spot behind a clump of dusty palms and kept one eye on her watch, the other on the elevator. She suspected her quarry was in the parlor on the mezzanine, but felt it was too dangerous a business to follow her.

It was nearly half-past one before Iris came down. There were two men with her, one unmistakably Latshaw. Buff silently blessed George Weekes for his clever sketches. There were the pouches beneath the eyes—eyes coldly gray now—the little jut to the big nose, the thin lips. He kept close to Iris, not a word nor gesture of hers lost on him.

The other man was bluff and genial. Only the expression of his face betrayed him to the watching girl. There was joy triumph in it, the look of having put something over on a woman; a silly and unsuspecting woman, at that. Buff's feminism almost rose in revolt at what she read in his eyes, his full-lipped mouth. For a moment even Tim's safety hung in the balance. Then Iris turned her head with a coquettish smile, and Buff hardened her heart.

The Curtain Rises

She was uncertain of what to do. It was patent that she could not follow Iris about Denver. Yet she felt the crisis of the situation. b) upon them. Unwittingly it was Iris herself—stupid Iris who could not even obey orders without blun-sitting in the room with you when people come in, then he must of course say "How do you do," politely, and "Good night" before leaving the room. But if people are strangers and he is amusing himself in his own room before he goes to bed, it would, it seems to me, be best that you and his mother go up to his room and say good night to him if you go one at a time it will make less disturbance than if you both leave together. If you can't leave unnoticed, then explain briefly, "I want to say good night to Junior—I'll be back in a moment." The really important point that his mother had made was in not letting him say "I won't."

dern! was Buff's scornful thought—who gave her the help she needed.

"Shall we all lunch together and then meet at Nesbit's office?" It's late," she went on plaintively. "I'm starting this time. This time her arch glance rested on Latshaw who returned it without expression—"I do think I've earned something rather special in the way of food today."

"Where?" demanded Latshaw. "Oh, the Shirley-Savoy! And the kind of luncheon that's a real celebration."

Latshaw opened his thin lips to protest, thought better of it; and the three moved toward the revolving door. Buff flew toward the telephone, praying silently that George Weekes had returned from his own lunch, and that he was not out on a surveying job. To her vast relief his cheery voice answered.

"Hello," George, this is Buff," she began rapidly. "Will you do exactly what I ask you to do?"

"Y-yes, I suppose so. But where are you?"

"Denver," she snapped. "And don't keep asking questions. I'll do the talking. You just shut your mouth and gig him up to have to cut him off. And drive here as fast as you can. Park where you can watch the front entrance to the Shirley-Savoy. Or if you can't park, get out and stand around until you see Iris and Latshaw and another man come out. Then—"

"Latshaw!" George howled. "Howly smoke! Buff, you're—"

"Will you listen?" she demanded coldly. "You all but shattered my eardrum when you yelled. You see them come out, then follow them. They'll head for Nesbit's office; by chance you lose 'em—I mean if it gets to be about three o'clock, you go on to Nesbit's anyway. Iris has just started out for what she called a celebration luncheon at the Shirley-Savoy. From there the three will go to call on Nesbit. Need I be more specific?"

"You needn't," was the solemn assurance. "The game is in the bag or would be," he added on a sudden whim. "Note, if I knew how certain I am to get Tim to Denver. He'll certainly balk at spying on Iris."

"Get him here by telling him she's in trouble and going to need him," said the graceless child at the other end of the line. "And heaven knows that's going to be true as soon as Latshaw finds what is happening. If he begins to get restless about waiting for her at the hotel, or suspects something amiss, then bully him into staying. Tell him you're going right to know what's going on; that there's such a thump as loyalty to one's friends and business partners as well as to—Iris. Your tongue is nimble enough, George. Use it!"

She was oddly exhausted when she turned away from the booth. She had had an early breakfast, the strain of her discovery was beginning to tell upon her. She longed to head her car back toward Boulder and leave the rest of the affair to George. But Buff had not sacrificed her pride, given up her beloved lecture course, spiced up another girl, invited—and received—Tim's cold fury at her efforts on his behalf only to abandon those efforts at the last minute.

Act One

"Men," she thought, "will never do the right thing, if it's humanly possible to do the wrong one. George has a lot at stake, but how do I know he won't get tired waiting, or think it's a wild idea on my part—anything? No, I've got to see it through. I'll have a cup of coffee and a sandwich and then I'll skulk about the Shirley-Savoy and see what I can see. Oh, Lance—Eleanor! If you could behold your only child at this minute!"

An hour and a quarter later the small person drifting to and fro in the busy crowd before the big hotel was rewarded by the sight of George and Tim, the former driving the shabby car they owned jointly, the latter sitting grimly by his side, neither speaking. Buff could not forbear to chuckle at the picture they made. It was evident to the most casual spectator that they had had a row; that Tim had yielded, reluctantly and angrily, to whatever argument George had put forward. He was in the mood, Buff knew, to rush to Iris's rescue even if he saw her in the company of Latshaw.

"But that's only Act One in this thrilling drama by Buff Carroll, starring Miss Iris DeMuth and featuring the Unknown Buyer. Act

Red Cross Appeals Will be Broadcast On Radio Systems

Nation-Wide Air Show Saturday Will Open Roll Call

American Red Cross membership appeals will be carried on more than 80 nation-wide radio programs during the annual roll call, Nov. 11 to 30, according to Mrs. Mabel O. Shannon, executive secretary of the Outagamie county chapter.

She explained that brief membership appeals will be included in almost all nation-wide programs to support the greatest membership drive in the last 20 years.

Next Saturday, President Roosevelt and Chairman Norman H. Davis officially will start the roll call when they highlight a variety program in which 17 stars of radio, screen and opera will participate at 9:30 Saturday night over the three major networks.

In Appleton the roll call will start with a big booster meeting at the Rio theater at 11:15 Saturday morning for workers and anyone else interested.

John E. Hantschel, county clerk and a veteran of the last war, will talk on his experiences with the Red Cross in France in 1918. Other talks are being arranged. The program will follow the American Legion's observance of Armistice day at 11 o'clock.

The membership quota for Outagamie county has been raised this year from 2,200 to 3,200 because of the increased need for the services Red Cross has to offer.

The Rev. G. H. Blum and George F. Werner are co-chairmen for the campaign.

Legion to Launch Membership Drive At Parley Tonight

Increased strength of the American Legion will mean greater assurance that America will not be involved in the present European war, Frank Wilson, commander of the Oney Johnston post, said today in announcing tonight's meeting at the clubhouse at which the post will launch a 3-day membership campaign.

"The American Legion, which knows better than any other organization the horror and futility of war, is steadfast in its opposition to our entering the conflict abroad," Wilson said this morning. "By increasing membership, the legion can become more effective in keeping America out of war."

The chairman joined with the post commander in declaring that opposition to America's participation in war will be strengthened by increased membership in the American Legion.

Menasha Eleven Begins Practice For Neenah Game

Calder Will Stress Pass Defense in Drills This Week

Menasha — The Menasha High school football team this afternoon began practice for the final game of the year, the battle at Neenah on Armistice day. Daily drills will be held this week right through Friday although the final one probably will be light.

The state teachers convention interfered with drills last week and practice sessions were held only Monday and Wednesday. Coach N. A. Calder was far from impressed with the showing made by the Bluejays in those drills.

The boys are going to receive plenty of drill on pass defense during the week, a department of the game in which they have been weak all season. Kaukauna, Shawano and West De Pere scored markers against the Menasha team through the air.

Game Will Be Hard
The remainder of the drills this week will be on blocking and tackling as the boys attempt to get their assignments down perfectly. Neenah has had a bad season but the boys can expect a hard game anyway because of the traditional rivalry.

A victory for the Menasha team would put it in fourth place in the final conference standings. Neenah, on the other hand, could escape a 3-way tie for the cellar by defeating the Jays.

The entire Menasha team is in top condition as a result of the lay-off since the New London contest. There are nine seniors on the Menasha High school squad and six probably will be in the starting lineup.

A. Jansen starred for the Little Chute team. He scored the first touchdown on a plunge and passed to Van Eperen for the second marker. When the young Zephyrs braced at the start of the fourth quarter he placed-kicked a field goal from at least 25 yards out. He scored the final touchdown and added the extra point too.

Speakers on the program included G. W. Unser, director of the band; the Rev. Joseph Becker, principal of St. Mary's High school, and Father Hummel. The pastor paid a high tribute to the work of the band director and the principal and declared that it would have been impossible for him to carry on the work he has done in the past years without the assistance of Father Becker.

A new novelty number, for which the St. Mary High school bands have become noted, was played at the program. The selection was "The Wedding of Heine and Katrina." Ensemble groups from the band were featured in various selections.

Neutrality Law Might Bring U. S. Shippers to Register Vessels Under Foreign Flag

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY
Washington.—What price the neutrality law? Listen to certain shipping men with long experience, and you hear that the first effect may be an undercover scramble by American ship owners to register their vessels under foreign flags.

That legal device might keep American vessels running on their regular routes in the minimum danger zones prescribed by the neutrality law.

But it also means they would abandon the protection of the American flag and the United States navy.

It's either foreign registry, say these shipping experts, or abandoning business built up against stiff foreign competition for the last 20 years. And many shippers are expected to choose foreign registration before they abandon business and tie up their ships.

A Practical Problem
The shipping experts are not, of course, attempting to pass on the question of whether it is right or wrong to have a neutrality law. That, they are quite agreeable, is for congress and the American public to decide. But as a practical problem, they do insist that the law plays havoc with the American merchant marine.

And in any event, the minimum danger zones required under the law will keep the American flag off the creamiest route in the world—the trans-Atlantic run.

But what if American ship owners should abandon their routes instead of taking chances under foreign flags?

In that case, the United States maritime commission says a big section of the already sick merchant marine would be tied up.

Large Annual Loss
The commission's data show that 86 American vessels totaling 561,719 tons would have to lie idle. That's about one-fourth of the tonnage we now have on the high seas. In all, we have 326 ships in foreign trade, a total of 2,150,000 tons of shipping. These ships would lose about $50,000,000 in revenue annually.

Six Convicts Facing Murder Trial in Slaying of Guard During Plot to Break Prison

ence. "Some friend of Warden Coon or some enemy of Harry H. Jackson, the Southern Michigan warden, promoted the break?"

"I wouldn't say I have any suspicion," the governor replied, "but something of the sort might have happened. If someone had the idea they could relieve the pressure in Marquette, the question might arise."

Coon's arrival was recommended by the attorney general after he had conducted a personal investigation of the September break from the Northern branch prison.

Break Tamed
In 50 minute event with all the elements of a movie thriller, five robbers and a rapist gained access to the prison roof Sunday afternoon and in the action that followed the guard was shot dead, a prison yard football game hurriedly called off, and all six felons captured.

Presumably timing their well-engineered plot to coincide with the football game, the six overpowered two guards and a prison officer in a stealthy maneuver to flee over the wall.

By the time five had clambered down a crude ladder of rope and pipe, the alarm was sounded and the prison exercise lot, where 3,000 convicts watched the game, had been ordered cleared.

Three of the fleeing felons—Sawaya, and George Bodie, 28, robbers, and Malcolm Stokes, rapist—dashed into a guard's car. Boucher tried to halt them and was killed by a shotgun blast.

Woman Wounded
A second shot went wild, and Mrs. Dorothy Roberts of Kalamazoo, visitor at the prison, was struck in the face by a pellet. She was slightly hurt.

Prison officials said the shotgun was taken from Russell Day, roof tower guard whom the six overpowered after gaining the room by tricking him into believing his relief guard was on hand.

The three, in the car belonging to Day, sped off, leaving their fellow-conspirators behind. A chase of a mile and a half ended with their surrender. Deputy Warden Glenn Carpenter's revolver shot to open a fire on the fugitives' machine.

Meanwhile, guards captured Paul Lawman, 33, and John L. Sullivan, 35, both serving robbery terms, near the prison wall, and Leo Thirault, 24, also a robber, fell captive as he hid behind a cupola on the roof.

Warden Jackson suspended Guard Day, "pending investigation," and all six of the convicts "were placed in 'detention cells.'"

RECAPTURE 2 IN BREAK
Richmond, Va.—Two of the eight federal prisoners who escaped from the Henrico county jail here last night were retaken today while walking on a Raleigh, N. C., street.

Detective Captain Bruce Boole of Raleigh said the pair identified themselves as Gerald Montague, 21, of Paducah, Ky., and James Gibson of Alexandria, Va.

Virginia police and the FBI continued search for the other prisoners who opened a hole through the jail wall and slid to freedom down a rope of blankets.

Gibson was being held on a rape charge.

Seven of the prisoners, including Montague, were awaiting trial on charges of escaping from a department of justice bus near Fredericksburg last summer while being transferred from the federal peni-

Math Wizard Is Looking for Job

Youth Said He Learned to Add When Dreaming He Was in Heaven

New Orleans.—(P)—Willie Dysart, 16, left school in the third grade, chews tobacco, and says he became a wizard with figures when he dreamed he was in Heaven.

Willie says he never can understand why people can't just look at whole bunches of figures and add them up without thinking about them. He can do it.

Tell him the day, month and year you were born and, without a pencil, he'll look you straight in the eye and tell you how many years, months, weeks, days, hours, minutes and seconds you've lived, not forgetting the leap years.

How Many Bricks?

In his home at Omega, Ga., Willie says, a man wanted to build a house and asked him how many bricks he needed, making allowances for windows and doors. "I told him right off," Willie says. "When he got all through the man had half a brick left over."

Willie insists he never tries to work out mathematical answers in his mind, but just knows the answer.

Ask him how he came by his talent and Willie always tell you this story:

"When I was 4 years old, my mummy was trying to teach me to add. I couldn't add up to a hundred. Then my mummy died. Right after she died, I dreamed I went up to Heaven to see my mummy. She told me I could do anything with figures."

"She gave me some problems I worked them all out right there in Heaven."

"I wake up and I'm still working our figures. I wake up my mummy and tell him. He give me some problems. I work them. Never had no trouble since."

He's wandering around now, looking for a job.

The depth bomb, terror of submarines, was invented in 1903 by W. T. Unge of Sweden.

There's nothing like being ready for a long, hard winter.

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Obligation of the W inner

Upon all of us who supported the repeal of the substitution of cash-and-carry there rests an obligation of personal honor to prove that the policy now adopted will not involve the United States as a combatant in the European war.

There are many honest men and women who believe that the repeal of the arms embargo will fatally lead to American participation. We have contended that they were wrong, and after a long debate they have been overruled. It is now the task of the president of the majority in both houses of congress, and of the rest of us who supported the new policy to show the minority not only that we have been acting in absolute good faith but also that our judgment has been sound.

The responsibility is ours, and this is the proper moment to fix it clearly in our minds and to avow it unequivocally.

In order to discharge that responsibility it is indispensable that in all matters pertaining to the war the administration should maintain scrupulously the existing political truce and the present cooperation with congress. Above all, this means that in administering the neutrality law and in conducting foreign affairs, the administration should make it an habitual rule to keep the responsible leaders of congress fully informed and to consult them before taking any important decision.

Collaboration Not Only Possible But Highly Effective

There are some men in the minority—it is not necessary to name them—who are unreliable and cannot be taken into any one's confidence. But they are only a few. It has been demonstrated in this special session that careful collaboration between the administration and congress is not only possible but highly effective, and nothing is more important than that this collaboration should be continued, should be deepened, and should become the custom.

This means giving up all temptation to make impulsive, personally invented, dramatic gestures, and to hold rigorously to the rule of taking decisions slowly but surely, cautiously but consistently, adhering always to the regular and lawful procedure, shunning short cuts, cleverness, and any kind of indirection.

The only certain way to convince the whole nation that this is the practice and there is no ground for suspicion is to make fully and continuously available to representative Republicans and to Democrats who are not New Dealers all relevant information about what is going on. The information that the newspapers can print will not be enough; there is always information, particularly about measures that are still being contemplated, which the congressional leaders can obtain only by being taken into the confidence of the president and his principal officials.

Necessarily, it will mean also the treatment of domestic issues in the same spirit and by the same procedure. Obviously, the president cannot now afford to divide the country internally; his failure to recognize that he must not carry on the domestic conflict was the cause of the disaster of last winter and summer which nearly wrecked his foreign policy.

He will wreck it again if he does not lay it down as a cardinal rule for himself and his subordinates that new measures will be proposed, that existing laws will be administered or revised, only by agreement with a non-partisan majority in congress, and always in the atmosphere of a common desire to unify the nation and conserve its strength.

Coming Presidential Election Makes Peculiar Problem

It will soon be necessary also to develop a coherent attitude toward the peculiar problem of the coming presidential election. This is a much more complicated problem than it seems, and it will need to be carefully discussed now that the neutrality law is out of the way.

In the last analysis, it is not a question of whether Mr. Roosevelt is to have a third term. For I feel reasonably sure that when the problem is studied, it will be evident to him that he must renounce a third term. The real question is how in the midst of so serious a crisis his successor can be nominated and elected without dividing the country, paralyzing the government, and causing confusion and insecurity throughout the world. To find the right solution will require much thought, and for the moment I do not think any one can do more than to begin to define the real problem. But until a solution becomes plain, it is obviously the duty of Mr. Roosevelt and his supporters not to play factional politics of any kind.

If the government is conducted in this spirit and by such methods, the majority who have prevailed in that they have acted in good faith. There will remain to be proved, however, that their judgment has been sound, that the policy adopted will make this country secure, keep it out of the European battlefields, and fortify the cause of freedom in the world.

The evidence will not be in until the history of these times is concluded. But on the evidence now available, being the kind of war that is being fought, it will, I believe, soon become clear to every one that this war is not going to be decided on any battlefield and that no American army will be or could be sent to any European battlefield in this war.

Designates War Zone
After signing the neutrality measure, the chief executive immediately exercised the discretionary powers it gave him to designate most European waters as a combat area which American ships and travelers could not enter.

By signing the bill, Mr. Roosevelt cleared the way for a flood of arms orders from Europe's belligerents, especially Great Britain and France. Estimates of initial purchases from those two powers have run between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000.

After putting the neutrality program into effect, Mr. Roosevelt went to Hyde Park, N. Y., to vote tomorrow. Most members of congress also returned to their homes, to remain until the regular 1940 session begins Jan. 3.

GERMAN COMMENT

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

Two will do the business. And," tears from her eyes, "Act Three will throw the playwright out on her ear, however successful the play has been from the box-office standpoint."

It all worked with unexpected smoothness. George was wheeled his car by the hotel entrance for the third time when the three came out: Iris with a gardenia pinned to the shoulder of her new coat, Latshaw looking like a cat about to spring on a mouse, the second man smugly smiling. But had a glimpse of Tim's startled face before George sent his car past as rapidly as he could with safety.

Buff felt oddly breathless when she got her own car from the parking lot and drove it toward the big building which housed Nesbit's modest office. The delay was sufficient to show her the first party going in at the entrance. She waited until she saw Tim white and plainly furious, and George, anxious but stern, follow; then she circled the block and turned back toward Boulder.

It was her hour of triumph, but no victor ever experienced less exultation than she. Her very flesh seemed sore and bruised, and her heart, she decided with a gulp of misery, was merely a cold, aching lump in her breast. She wanted nothing but a hot bath and a bed; Webby to bring her a tray at supper-time perhaps, and to answer the telephone and doorbell with the information that Miss Carroll was—what? Ill? Gone to Little America? In the hospital at Denver with a fractured skull and critical internal injuries? Anything, anything that would keep people away!

She didn't want to see George. She hated him as a fellow conspirator in what she now felt to be a piece of treachery on her part. "Because, look," she adjured herself. "Why should I offend all my principles, practically starve and freeze myself, run the risk of being arrested for vagrancy in Denver, miss a couple of motor accidents by a half of a split hair, just to prove to a dumb-bell that he is a dumb-bell? Especially when he'll probably come around and brain me when I have proved it!"

Continued tomorrow.

These sources also intimated in view of the loss of the United States freighter City of Flint—taken from a German prize crew and handed over by Norwegian authorities to her American personnel—that Germany would deal more sternly with contraband shipments.

On the western front, where the German high command yesterday found nothing noteworthy to report, there was "somewhat livelier reconnoitering activity in several sectors" and "weak artillery fire," this morning's communique said.

The communique also said a French plane had been shot down by German pursuit planes near Saarburg (Sarrebouurg - Moselle, France).

As disappointment became more apparent over the fact the United States had, in effect, made available vast war supplies for Germany's enemies, the foreign office mouthpiece, Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, declared the new law places a "serious responsibility" on President Roosevelt.

This semi-official commentary contended that a desire "to buy profits with blood and the prosperity of other peoples" was the only consistent policy of a group of former war profiteers.

BURGOMASTER DIES

Brussels.—(P)—Adolphe Max (above), burgomaster of Brussels who was imprisoned by Germany during the World war and who had held office continuously ever since, died today at the age of 70. He once declined the Belgian premiership to remain mayor and broke all records as holder of that office. He was named burgomaster on Oct. 12, 1909, and was chief citizen of the Belgian capital for a longer period than any of his predecessors throughout the city's centuries of history.

His heroic stand against the German invaders on the outbreak of the war in 1914 made him easily the most popular man in the whole of the tiny kingdom, and he never lost his place in the hearts of all Belgians.

November Is Good Time to Observe Native Squirrels

BY CLARA HUSSONG
"November is a good time to get acquainted with our native squirrels," I said last December when I made the plans for the monthly field trip suggestions which I have been giving you the first week of each month. If you follow the suggestions for this month you are sure to see four of our six varieties of squirrels, and possibly a fifth. The sixth member of the family, the striped ground squirrel or "gopher," has recently gone into hibernation and will not be seen again until April or May.

The four which are still about at this time of the year are the red, gray, fox and flying squirrels. The fifth member of the group is the chipmunk who sleeps through the winter, but not at all so profound as the gopher and in mild seasons may often be seen late in fall and very early in spring. Red, gray, fox and flying squirrels are generally termed "tree squirrels," while the chipmunk and striped ground squirrel are known as "ground squirrels."

Red Squirrel Common
Because of its abundance in the state, its fearlessness and noise-making habits, perhaps the best-known member of the squirrel family is the red squirrel or "Chickadee." It can be found in country groves and forests, city parks and even about our homes if there are oak and pine trees in the yard. Hollows in stumps, trees and logs are favorite sites for its home.

In this hollow it stores such food and nuts and seeds, wild berries and mushrooms. Of the tree squirrels it is the only one who stores large quantities of food in one spot, a habit erroneously attributed to gray and fox squirrels as well. In winter it uses up this food, supplementing it with any other food it may find. A hike through a wood in winter will find them sleek and well-fed, scampering over the snow or scolding from the tops of trees.

The young are born in the hollow in April or May. There are usually four or five in a litter. In winter the red squirrels change color somewhat, their sides becoming grayish instead of red-brown as in summer. A full-grown squirrel measures a little more than 12 inches in length, measuring from tip of nose to tip of tail.

Come Out After Storms
By this time gray squirrels have deserted their tree-top summer nests of twigs and leaves and have found warm hollows in which to spend the winter months. Occasionally a well-built outside nest is used in winter as well as summer. Gray squirrels can be found in almost any city park and they become friendly toward humans, especially if they are fed. They do not hibernate through the winter, but during severe storms, when the storm is over they emerge, burrow through the snowbanks in search of the nuts and seeds they have hidden close to the surface of the ground. Their sense of smell is said to guide them when looking for these stored-up nuts. With their soft silvery gray winter coats these squirrels are unusually attractive at this season.

The fox squirrel is a bit larger than the gray and is more or less marked with tawny, yellow and black. Sometimes both the gray and fox squirrels are black, a variety which is a little of regularly marked squirrels. Black squirrels are therefore not a distinct species, but may be an "off-color" form of either the gray or the fox.

Although this species prefers the oak prairies of the state they may be found along rocky ridges and even in towns. Recently a caller over the phone told me of a fox squirrel which built a nest on a window sill and used it for its home all winter. It was much wilder than the gray squirrels this man had befriended but in time became a little less shy.

Like the gray squirrel, the fox squirrel buries nuts singly under leaves and grass and in winter digs them up again. It also feeds on berries, seeds, thornapples and buds of trees and shrubs. Its regular winter home is a hollow tree. Fox squirrels are more common in the southern half of the state than farther north.

Gopher Sleeps Well

Flying squirrels do not actually fly, their gliding is possible because of the loose, fur-covered membrane which stretches from their forepaws to their hind legs and helps to turn their bodies into a parachute when they wish to spring from one tree to another. Few people see these small squirrels because they do not come out of their hollow tree homes except after dark, or occasionally on dark cloudy days. Some food is stored but they are by no means the thrifty providers that red squirrels are. Their usual home is in heavy forests but I have been told of finding them in attics, deserted martin houses and other places.

Both the chipmunk and the striped ground squirrel are well-known to country children. The former is most often seen in woods where there is plenty of underbrush, or if he comes out in the open, he prefers lumber piles, stone walls or huge rocks under which to burrow his underground home. The striped ground squirrel, a lover of meadows and farm-lands, differs from the rest of his relatives in his shorter tail, which is not bushy, small rounded ears and the numerous stripes, on his back. Both spend the winter underground, the gopher in a deep sleep which lasts about six months, and the chipmunk in a lighter sleep of shorter duration.

Crop Insurance Costs U. S. Money Uncle Sam Goes in "Red" As Losses Exceed Premiums

Washington — (P)— Uncle Sam went into the "red" in his first effort to insure American farmers against losses from drought, floods, hail insects and other natural causes.

The Federal Crop Insurance corporation, which last year inaugurated a nationwide program of crop insurance for wheat, reported today that it had paid indemnities in excess of its premium collections from insuring farmers.

Government policies were taken out by 165,551 farmers on their 1939 crop. They paid $7,699,120 bushels of wheat as premiums, or 42-420 reported crop losses and received indemnities totaling 9,461,730 bushels.

Thus, the government insurance corporation's losses amounted to 2,762,610 bushels of grain, or a cash equivalent of about $1,885,000 at current prices. The losses were taken from a $20,000,000 capital stock with which congress invested the agency.

Leroy K. Smith, manager of the corporation, said indemnities exceeded premiums because the 1939 wheat yield in 31 major wheat states was 10 per cent below average.

The corporation reported that claims paid up to Oct. 24 and the total indemnities involved, respectively, by states included:

Ohio 1,811 and 97,229 bushels; Indiana 2,463 and 143,164; Illinois 942 and 57,073; Michigan 887 and 37,767; Iowa 1720 and 123,527; Missouri 2,672 and 162,056; Wisconsin 83 and 2,776; Minnesota 1,652 and 104,380.

Goodland Issues Proclamation on Education Week

Special Programs Being Held in Appleton Public Schools

Appleton schools have adopted "Education for the American Way of Life" as the theme for their observance of American Education week, which opened yesterday.

The public relations committee of the Appleton Education association has planned the program of the week's activities. Rolland Nock is chairman of the committee, assisted by A. G. Meating, Mrs. Mabel Meyer, and Sidney A. Cotton.

Posters proclaiming American Education week are being displayed in stores throughout the city. The week received official recognition by the city government with the issuance of a proclamation today by Mayor John Goodland, Jr.

The proclamation follows: "Since ours is a government where authority is derived from those who are governed, it is essential that we have an informed electorate. However, in order to have an informed electorate a great public school system has been set up in the United States. The unwritten mandate to that school system is to prepare the people of our country so that the democratic form of government may be not only improved, but also, perpetuated.

"Because democratic society is very complex, the work of the schools is likewise complex. It is imperative, therefore, that every father and mother be informed on all educational aims and procedures.

"As Mayor of the city of Appleton, Wisconsin, I, therefore, now proclaim November 5-11, 1939, as Appleton Education week, which is in accordance with American Education week. I urge, also, that all parents visit the schools during this week so that they may become better acquainted with the teachers and the administrators, and the school procedures which they foster."

Parents Night
Wilson Junior High school will hold a "go-to-school" night program this evening, with parents attending 10-minute class periods and then assembling in the auditorium for a program. Herb Heilig, Appleton Vocational school director, will talk on adult education at a meeting of the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce this evening in Hotel Appleton.

Alma J. Zilmer, representing the state board of health, will speak at a meeting of the McKinley school PTA Wednesday evening. A program in which the Appleton High school band, orchestra, and chorus and members of the board of education will appear is being planned for Thursday night.

Appleton churches are participating by considering the topic, "The Place of Religion in Our Democracy."

To remove small grease spots from wall paper cover the spot with a white blotter and quickly run a warm iron over it until the spot is absorbed by the blotter. If the spot doesn't come out, rub talcum powder over it and, after several days, brush it off with a soft cloth.

What's New at the Library

The arms embargo, cash and carry, trade at your own risk, restrictions on American shipping, the ban on war loans and other legislative expedients adopted or suggested to safeguard peace are discussed in the book, "Can America Stay Neutral?" by Allen W. Dulles and Hamilton Fish Armstrong. Two leading authorities give the pros and cons of all devices for keeping the United States neutral. The work is an examination of the place of the United States in the modern world, with parallels between our present and past experiences. Dulles was legal adviser to the American delegation at the Three Power Naval conference in 1927 and the Disarmament conference in 1932 and 1933, while Armstrong is editor of Foreign Affairs.

"Autobiography" by A. A. Milne is the life story of the essayist, novelist and dramatist who has written books for children such as "Winnie the Pooh" as well as such adult fare as "Peace with Honour," mystery stories and humorous books.

Jacques Barzun, author of "Of Human Freedom," does not consider democracy a set of institutions but an attitude, an atmosphere, a culture. Some of the chapter headings are "Culture and Tyranny," "The Arts, the Snobs and the Democrats" and "The Race Mind" to End Mind."

The social, economic and political progress of mankind is shown like a pageant that moves from primitive times down to our day in "Modern Man in the Making" by Dr. Otto Neuraht. It also gives a glimpse of the route the pageant seems to be taking.

"Mexico at the Bar of Public Opinion" by Burr M. McConnell is a survey of public opinion in newspapers of the western hemisphere by a former member of the Literary Digest editorial staff.

Full-page color drawings of the costumes of various countries are given in "National Costumes" by Sepage-Medvey. The countries included Austria, Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Men whose strength builds rather than destroys, who live creatively and dedicate their lives to the suffering are the subject of the book, "Three Trumpets Sound—Kagawa, Gandhi and Schweitzer," by Allan A. Hunter. Sketches of these three men are given.

Dr. Henry Smith Williams in his new book, "The Private Lives of Birds," writes of the highly interesting instincts, mentality and activities of birds, resident and migratory, and shows that birds display an astonishing number of human traits. He maintains that they are home-lovers, have a sense of property-values, are first-rate craftsmen, and that they follow fashion in the bird world, have the equivalent of articulate speech, emulate their neighbors, exhibit emotions and are on occasions a social, thieves and criminals.

"Life and You" is a new work by Dr. Preston Bradley, pastor of Chicago's Peoples Church, who has become known to thousands of people through his radio talks and earlier books. In this book he seeks to inspire.

Firing data was estimated and worked out by battery officers, and the landing spots of the shells were checked. Col. Alvin Kuechenberger, of Milwaukee said the practice was of benefit in training both officers and men. Summer firing activities have been confined to target work.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

PEPYS DIARY

In the year Queen Victoria was born (120 years ago) a young man named John Smith was given a strange task. He was a student at Cambridge university in England and was asked to find the meaning of certain hand-written books. The books had been finished 150 years before, in the time of King Charles II. They had been on the shelves of the Cambridge library most of that time, but little was known about them.

Samuel Pepys

There were six volumes, and they had been given to the library by the will of Samuel Pepys. People who had looked at them had learned that most of the words were in an odd writing, with a few Latin and other foreign words here and there.

A writing expert declared that young Smith never could figure out the words, and that no one else could. Yet Smith set to work, and stayed at it for three years. In that time he found that most of the words were written in a kind of "shorthand" which had been invented in 1641 by a man named Shelton, but which had been forgotten.

Step by step, Smith wrote down the meaning of the thousands and thousands of words. They were the diary of a man's life for a period of nine years. Day after day, Pepys had told what he had heard about, seen and done. He had written in a secret way, thinking that if his wife or anyone else saw the diary during his lifetime it would not be understood.

Perhaps Pepys hoped that someone would learn to read the pages after his death. We cannot be sure how he felt about that. At any rate, it was at last brought to the world in printed form, and it made Pepys famous.

The diary has been printed in edition after edition. One complete edition has nine volumes. Most other editions give it in short form, in one or two volumes.

There are three ways to pronounce the name of the author. A simple and correct way to speak his name is like "peeps," and another way is "peps."

Pepys held a public office and grew rich, but he was not a great man. His diary is famous for other reasons.

From the diary of Pepys, we learn ever so much about a certain period of English history. The author tells the customs of the people, and he describes certain great events which took place.

KRCMAR STOPPED THIS TIME BUT RIPON BEATS LAWRENCE
This picture of the Lawrence-Ripon game, which the Crimson won 13 to 0 here Saturday afternoon, was taken in the second quarter when the Lawrence Vikings still were keeping close watch of the elusive Ripon back, Sveto Krcmar, No. 40. But in the fourth period Sveto rambled a couple times and tossed a couple passes and that accounts for the score. The picture also shows, left to right, Gierhahn, No. 48, Ripon tackle on the ground, Zwergel, Lawrence, No. 22, Lingie, Lawrence, No. 17, Garvey, Lawrence, No. 19, and Krcmar, Lawrence. ## Bits About Bowling

by Dick Davis

COMES TIME to air an idea we'd like to see materialize. There's many a family that boasts five or more bowlers and, naturally, each clan thinks it can beat the other. That's about as far as the argument gets, however, and it's one of those never-ending disputes, the families rarely getting together in showdown matches. Our idea is a FAMILY BOWLING TOURNAMENT to settle those pin feuds once and for all—well, for this season at least.

Not only would such a tourney determine supremacy. We feel it would be a lot of fun and would provide an opportunity to pick up a little cash in the form of prize money.

We'd suggest that the tournament be conducted during the holiday lull, probably on a Sunday, with all families in Appleton and vicinity eligible. There could be some special events like father and son or husband and wife for those klegers whose broods aren't large enough to make up a quintet.

Among families we think would be interested are the Piettes, Balliets, Liethens, Schultzs, Hoepfers, Kunitz's, Hoffmann's, Strutz's, Schiltz's, Utschigs and Nebels of Appleton; the Plamanns, Schommers and Murphys of Freedom way; Lamers and Versteegs of Little Chute; Schulers, Combined Locks; VanderVeldens of Kimberly and the Weisgerbers, from hither and yon. There's probably many more but these are the ones who come to mind at the moment.

If interested, let us know SOON and we'll round up a steering committee to consider any suggestions and iron out details.

H. A. DeBauter, rolling for the first time this season with Pittsburgh in the Eastern league at Elks alleys, did himself proud as he walloped a scratch 240. He warmed up with a 133. Ole Jorgensen, Neenah school klegler in the Teachers league at the Arcade slapped a 107 in his second game and then rolled along to a 201.

James Nolan, captain of the Nolan Insurance team of the American City league at Y.M.C.A. alleys and new to the game this season, dumbfounded the boys when he cleaned up two tough splits in the same game. With little hesitation, he wiped out

3-7-10 and the 8-10. And here's one for Appleton women to shoot at. Mrs. Bessie Keune disposed of a 4-3-6-10 split during Seymour Women's league matches at the Seymour drives.

While this didn't happen in Appleton, it's a story that can be appreciated by bowlers. Max Johnson of Hayward bowled a score of 1501 during an inter-city

Manitowoc-Manitowoc knocked Green Bay West out of the undefeated class in the Fox River Valley conference here Saturday, defeating the Wildcats, 7 to 0. The victory put Manitowoc into a tie with West for second place.

A crowd of 1,500 saw the Shipbuilders score Manitowoc's first win over a Green Bay team in nine years. Manitowoc held the Bays for downs on the one yard line in the first period. In the second quarter Manitowoc got the ball on West's 21 yard line when Roy Stockmeyer recovered a fumble by Royal Desart. Cliff Champagne tossed a 10 yard pass to Ken Schmitt, and Gardy Weber scored on a reverse from the eight yard line.

In the third period West lost the ball on the six inch line on downs.

56 Enter Turkey Handball Tourney

Competition at Y. M. C. A. Will Wind Up With Dinner Nov. 28

Starting with 28 players in 1938, the annual turkey handball tournament at the Y. M. C. A. drew 56 entrants in 1937, 40 in 1938 and this year the entry list climbed to 56. Matches were scheduled to begin to-day and the tourney will wind up with a dinner Nov. 28.

Players are divided into two teams, the Fish and the Quacks, and the squad losing the most games puts on the "feed." There are two extra players and if another pair of handballers can be found, a total of 60 will be competing.

Quacks are Lawrence Zimmerman, captain, Jerome Captain, Mark Childs, Ray Risch, Willard Zap, Arno Seifert, Robert Lloyd, Marvin Heiden, Norman Lamarr, James Williamson, James Van Able, Kenneth Kitchen, Frank Spencer, Ralph Hubbard, George Tomlinson, Albert Kopulos, Ward Wheeler, Evan VanDeWalle, George Klein, Clayton Kille, Homer Gebhardt, Frans Larson, John Voigt, Douglas Ollivie, Milton Schwardt, Eugene Mullen, William Stark and Winton Schumacker.

W. Geenen wins the fur-lined, bowling ball holes for his low score of the week. Rolling with Fountain Lumbars in the Knights of Columbus American division at Elks alleys, he started off with a 63, stepped up his pace to a 220 total. C. Tierney of the American City league was "runner-down" with games of 97, 67 and 90 for a 254 series.

Tournament-minded teams are advised of an American Bowling congress sanctioned Gateway Recreation tourney at Beloit from Nov. 18 to Dec. 3. Entries close Nov. 11.

Just in case you didn't know it, "Under American Bowling congress rules any player who wilfully throws his ball into the gutter or who deliberately misses spares or commits a foul, shall be removed immediately from the game or series and a balance of players shall complete the game by substitute member of said team is present and can take barred bowler's place."

There was no bowling at pins on the grass at Bowling Green in New York city. Play there was devoted to lawn bowling. The first actual mention of the bowling-at-pins form of game was made by Washington Irving in "Rip Van Winkle," (about 1818).

Teachers College Grid Titles Go to LaCrosse, Milwaukee

(By the Associated Press)
DIVISIONAL championships in the Wisconsin Teachers college football conference rolled up today with La Crosse, in the north, and Milwaukee, in the south. La Crosse took its championship by defeating Stout Institute while Superior was losing its first conference game of the season to Eau Claire. Coach Clyde Smith's eleven won three league games and lost one and tied one—with Stout.

Milwaukee finished its conference schedule undefeated for the first time since 1931 by downing Oshkosh. Tom Kelly was the star of the game at La Crosse, accounting for 19 points himself and passing to Jim Quinn for six more as La Crosse rolled up a 32 to 7 victory over the Blue Devils. Harley Wehrwein got Stout's touchdown on a 4-yard end-around play.

An Oshkosh eleven that wasn't supposed to have a look-in kept the margin to 14 to 7 in Milwaukee's homecoming.

Eau Claire was trailing Superior 13 to 12 with less than two minutes to go when it began a march from the Yellowjackets' 48-yard line and carried the ball over on a mixture of running plays and passes to win 18 to 13. Morrie Poquette ran 79 yards for Eau Claire's first touchdown.

Pointers Beaten
Al Farina, Whitewater Teachers' outstanding backfield man, hurled a third-period touchdown pass to Fritz to give the Quakers a 6 to 3 victory at Stevens Point over Central State Teachers in a southern division game. The Pointers were 15 first downs to three for Whitewater but could score only on a 15-yard placement field goal by Slotwinski.

A 20-yard third-quarter field goal by Ray Dubbe gave River Falls Teachers a 9 to 7 victory at home over previously unbeaten Winona (Minn.) Teachers.

Ripon defeated Lawrence 13 to 0 in a midwest conference game at Appleton. Beloit overcame a 19-point deficit to defeat the Grinnell Pioneers 26 to 19 in a midwest game on the Iowans' field.

Carroll was a 26 to 7 winner over an invading Wheaton (Ill.) college eleven. Carroll scored on the first play, a pass from Beach to Maahs. Milton lost to Rose Polytechnic Institute of Terre Haute, Ind., 13 to 12, in a night game at Milton. Fullback Gschwandtner passed to Hull and Burdick for Milton's touchdowns.

The Wisconsin State School of Mines (Platteville) won from Aurora (Ill.) college at Aurora, 6 to 0, on a touchdown by Shankland.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Chicago Bears, coming from behind four times, rolled over the Green Bay Packers yesterday, 30 to 27, with a devastating running and passing attack in a thrilling see-saw battle before 40,537 spectators.

The Packers took the lead four times during the spin-tling spectacle, but the Bears, who already have lost three games, came on each time to tie the game up or go into the lead.

Midway of the fourth period the Packers were trailing, 20 to 23, when the old reliable combination of Arnold Herber to Don Hutson produced a 20 yard touchdown pass.

Paul Engbertsen contributed the point from placement and it looked like that was the ball game.

But the Bears launched an aerial offensive in the rapidly gathering dusk of Wrigley field. Sid Luckman tossed to Ed Manske for 18 yards and then pitched a long overhand to Bob MacLeod which gained 45 yards and put the ball on the Packers' 10 yard line.

Bill Osmanski, outstanding hero of the Bear victory, swept right end for seven yards. Then he smacked left end for the touchdown, going over standing up. Jack Manders went into the game and added the point from placement.

The Packers struck first when Joe Laws took Ray Nolting's punt on his own 28 and ran 72 yards down the sidelines for a touchdown. Ernie Smith kicked the point after.

Chicago tied the score in less than a minute. Osmanski returned the kickoff 44 yards to the Packers' 43. On the first play from scrimmage, Bob Swisher broke through right guard for a touchdown. Manders booted the point.

Later in the same period the Packers pushed across another touchdown when Cecil Isbell tossed a 31 yard aerial to Mill Gentenein, who took the ball on the two and stepped across. Smith missed the point from placement.

The Bears went ahead early in the second period after Swisher, Osmanski and Luckman hampered their way to the Packers' 20. Snapped cold in three plays, Luckman pitched a flat pass to Osmanski, who drove across. Manders' placement was successful, giving the Bears a 14-13 edge. Then the Chicagoans increased their lead to four points when Bob Snyder booted a field goal from the 27 midway of the same period.

The Packers, however, moved to the front again after Bud Svendsen intercepted a pass and returned 32 yards to the Bears' 28. Isbell passed to Harry Jacuski for the touchdown. Engbertsen kicked the goal, leaving Green Bay ahead, 20 to 17, at the half.

The third period brought the least action from a scoring standpoint as the Bears held their rivals scoreless while punching across one touchdown. This produced when Bernie Masterson tossed a short pass to Dick Plasman after Osmanski had set up the tally with a 38 yard punt to the Packers' 13. Manders' try for goal failed.

Southern California, UCLA Will Battle to Represent West in Rose Bowl Classic

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK—(AP)—The western team to play in the annual Rose Bowl classic New Year's day probably will be decided upon after Southern California and U. S. L. A. meet at Los Angeles. But if you're interested in other teams that may go "bowling" this winter, you can have your choice among Tennessee, Texas Aggies, Notre Dame, Cornell, Duquesne, Catholic university and perhaps a half dozen others.

The teams named were the only ones of anywhere near "major" importance left on the list of the nation's undefeated and untied college football squads after last Saturday's games. The "others" have been tied but not beaten or have been able to shake off the effects of a single defeat.

Southern California and U. S. L. A. are two of the most prominent of the once-tied group and they have both recovered very smartly from those early-season difficulties. The Trojans knocked Oregon State off the Pacific Coast conference peak last week by 19-7 while the Uclans whipped California, 20-7.

Favorites Bumped
In the same division were Oklahoma, Kentucky, North Carolina, Dartmouth, Georgetown, Rutgers and Richmond, the last tied twice. Oregon State, mighty Michigan, Nebraska and Utah unceremoniously were bumped out of the championship picture last week.

Since U. S. L. A. will be idle next Saturday and Southern California was tied to play Stanford, which hasn't bothered anyone much so far, no change in the western half of the "bowl" argument seemed due this week. There's trouble in store for most of the other sectional leaders, however, in a program which lines up something like this:

East: Cornell managed to survive the Ohio State triumph by means of blocking a couple of kicks to whip Columbia 13-7 and still ranks as about the best team in the east. Colgate, an old rival, may put up another good argument this week but hardly figures to win. Duquesne, which came from behind to down Marquette, 21-13, goes south to play North Carolina State's wolfpack, 17-0 victims of the powerful North Carolina outfit, while Catholic, 13-7 winner over Tulsa, plays Little St. Anselm.

'Ivy League' Hot
The biggest games outside of intersectional tilts between comeback-bound Fordham, which beat Rice 13-7, and Indiana and New York university's strong team against the surprising Missouri Tigers, were "Ivy League" affairs.

Princeton, 9-6 conqueror of Harvard in the first "big three" game, takes on Dartmouth, which improved its unbeaten record by wallowing Yale, 33-0. Harvard plays Army, which gave Notre Dame a good scrap before going down 14-0; Columbia meets Navy, 13-6 victim of Pennsylvania, and Penn plays Penn State. Pitt-Carnegie, Temple-Holy Cross and Yale-Brown were other standouts.

South Tennessee, heading for its second straight unbeaten season, looked almost unbeatable in stopping Louisiana State cold, 20-0, and doesn't intend to be beaten this week by the Citadel, last-place team of the Southern conference. Kentucky, which remained unbeaten and surprised most of the experts by tying Alabama, 7-7, was the most dangerous rival in sight for the Vols. The Wildcats take on Georgia Tech this week in a game which should give the winner a tie with Tennessee for the Southeastern conference lead. Tulane, with the same objective in sight, tackles Alabama while L. S. U. plays Mississippi State.

Still far ahead in the Southern conference race, North Carolina meets Davidson while Duke's Blue Devils, fresh from a 7-6 win over Georgia Tech, return to conference competition against Virginia Military, which was held to a scoreless tie by Richmond. Clemson, another title candidate, takes on Wake Forest.

Ohio State Leads
Midwest: The fans stopped holding their breath after Illinois trounced Michigan 16-7 last Saturday. Figuring nothing more can happen now to surprise them. That left Ohio State, 24-0 winner over Indiana, in sole possession of the Big Ten lead and Notre Dame as the only undefeated and untied team of importance in the mid-west.

This week the Buckeyes play Chicago, which did comparatively well in losing to Virginia, 47-0. Michigan, having learned it's never safe to bump Zupke was around, faces Minnesota, defeated 14-7 when Northwestern shook Bill de Corret loose for a long run. Iowa, looking for a second place with Northwestern after beating Purdue 4-0, hopes to do as well against Notre Dame.

Missouri, after giving the Big Six its shock by defeating Nebraska 27-13 on Paul Christman's remarkable passing, goes east while Oklahoma, the circuit's only unbeaten survivor, takes a shot at a first-place tie. The Sooners kept pace by trimming Iowa State 38-8 and next try Kansas State, 27-6 winner over Kansas Friday.

Southwest: The two Southwest conference favorites, Texas Aggies and Southern Methodist, are out to settle the championship this week. The winner likely will figure very prominently in "bowl" talk. For the Aggies have routed all opposition, beating Arkansas 27-0 last Saturday while S. M. U. opened its conference campaign with a 10-0 win over Texas. The Methodists' only defeat was by one point against Texas A. and M. and Baylor, tied over Texas Christian 27-0 win for another conference tilt while Arkansas and Rice play for the consolation. T. C. U. meets Tulsa, Texas Tech plays much-beaten Centenary and Arizona faces Texas Mines in other league southwest games.

West Coast Quiet
Pacific coast: Barring an upset on the Michigan-Illinois road by Stanford, which lost 27-7 to Santa Clara Saturday, there's not much going on the west coast this week. Oregon State and Oregon, tied for second in the conference, meet in one game while California plays Washington, which edged out Montana, 9-0. Santa Clara faces an intersectional rival, Michigan State, while Washington State plays Idaho.

Rocky Mountain: Colorado, which lost its first three games this season, now heads the mountain states Big Seven after an amazing 21-14 triumph over Utah and has the week off to feel good about it. The Utes play the University of Hawaii, leaving Brigham Young to aim at a tie for the lead. E. Y. U. upset Denver 21-18 and now meets Utah State, 19-7 victim of Idaho. Denver plays Colorado State, 22-0 winner over Wyoming, which plays St. Louis U. Friday. Colorado Mines, the region's only unbeaten and untied team, faces Western State.

MINNESOTA LINE YIELDS TO NORTHWESTERN POWER
Northwestern's Wildcats opened up the Minnesota line on this play at left tackle in the first quarter at Minneapolis with halfback Floyd Chambers (No. 54) taking the ball for a four-yard gain. No. 78, being charged by a Northwestern player, is Bjorklund, Gopher center. No. 20, Hahnstein of Northwestern, is trying to keep out Van Every (No. 83), Minnesota back. No. 53 of Northwestern is Daly. Northwestern won the game, 14 to 7.

down that spot and he probably would have taken care of the plays. The game opened with an exchange of punts and then Ripon marched from its own 49 to the Viking 10. Miller opened the drive with a 22-yard slash off his right tackle and then added a first down on the Lawrence 15. Two smashes netted five yards and a fourth down pass was into the end zone.

Lawrence electrified the crowd on the first play when Kaemmer went over his right tackle, lateraled to Nencki when about to be tackled and the latter wasn't hauled down.

until he reached the Ripon 26. A total gain of 54 yards. The Vikings got no farther, however, on two running plays and two passes.

Ripon kicked out and Lawrence marched from its own 47 to the Ripon 14. The drive opened with a pass to Nystrom for a first down on the 38 and was followed by an 11-yard gain by Buesing on a lateral which was wide but which bounced correctly and he gathered it up for a sprint. Here the Crimson gave ground slowly and on fourth down a pass to Buesing found him well guarded.

The teams exchanged fumbles in the vicinity of the Ripon 40-yard line as the second quarter opened. Nystrom recovered for the Vikings and when interference was ruled on a pass, Nencki to Buesing, Lawrence was on the Ripon 25. Here Kaemmer hit the line for a gain but the ball squirted from his hands and Ripon recovered.

More Fumbling
Ripon immediately kicked out to the Lawrence 42 and Nencki got off a gallop across midfield but fumbled as he was tackled and Ripon recovered. On the first play Kremer broke into the open but tripped and fumbled and Nencki recovered for Lawrence. On second down, a pass from Nencki to Lingle was good to the Ripon 28 but four plays later the Vikings gave up the ball with little gain.

Ripon fumbled on first down and Kaemmer recovered on the Ripon 34. Lawrence drew a 5-yard penalty but on fourth down had gained only 5 yards and an attempted kick from placement was short. Ripon picked up 25 yards from the 20-yard line as the half ended.

The third quarter was played in Ripon territory but was largely a punting duel. Shortly after the period opened, Lawrence gained the ball on the Vike 40 when Ripon tried for a yard on fourth down but Jones moved from tackle to defensive guard and stopped the ball carrier without a gain. The Vikes suffered a 15-yard penalty on the first play, however, and then booted the ball down the field.

Ripon had the ball on the Vike 40 as result of a pass, Kremer to Rember, when the fourth stanza opened. Peters then punted out bounds on the Lawrence 6-yard line and Buesing kicked back to the Lawrence 35. Kremer slid off his right tackle for a first down on the 23 on the first play. The Crimson lost a couple yards on the second play but on the third Kremer tossed a pass to Miller who got in front of Nencki and counted. On the try for the point, Miller swept around the end on a run, pivoted out of Romanoff's arm and crossed the line.

Buesing Runs 34 Yards
It appeared Lawrence might even the score on the kickoff when Buesing returned the ball 34 yards to the Lawrence 40 and Nencki picked up 11 for a first down on the Ripon

Clintonville Wins Conference Game

BY TOM MASTERSON

NEENAH—Clintonville recorded its first Northeastern Wisconsin conference football victory in five years here Saturday afternoon when the Trunkers edged the Buxtons, 14 to 7. The Trunkers won a 7 to 6 triumph over Neenah.

With Zemke, fullback, carrying the burden on offense, the Trunkers outplayed the Rockets during the first half, scoring their touchdowns in the second quarter after recovering a fumble on Neenah's 40. Neenah dominated the play during the second half, scoring its touchdown in the fourth period after conducting a concerted drive from their own 30. Quarterback Clifford Burkett's attempted drop kick for the extra point failed, and the Rockets were unable to overcome the Trunkers' 1-point margin.

Clintonville counted 12 first downs during the contest, making six in the first half and as many in the second, while Neenah posted only nine first downs, two in the first half and seven during the second half.

Zemke Trucker Star
While Zemke starred for the Trunkers, doing practically all of the ground gaining, Buxton Kettering, halfback, and Dino Burts, freshman quarterback, shared honors for Neenah. Kettering's kicking especially was outstanding.

Two long punts, both well over 55 yards, by Kettering kept the Trunkers back in their own territory during the opening quarter. Neenah tossed away a scoring opportunity early in the period when

The Trunkers made two first downs before they were forced to punt. Neenah also picked up a first down. Fullback Charles Kettering swung through right tackle for a 9-yard gain, but Buxton Kettering was forced to kick, getting off another 50-yard boot. The Trunkers chalked up another first down, and then kicked to Burts who returned to Neenah's 40, but on the first play, Strohmeyer, left half, fumbled.

Zemke heaved a 10-yard pass to Buxton halfback, for a first down and another to Billingsley, quarter back, for a second first down, and then he slid through the center of the line for a 4-yard gain to the 4 yard marker. Billmeyer carried the ball on the next play, but Clintonville drew a 15-yard penalty, and another 5-yard fine on the following attempt, and then Zemke raced across the other flank for the score. Billmeyer place kicked the extra point.

Fumbles Hurt
Fumbles continued to dog the Rockets, Bunker fumbling but recovering the kickoff on the 17. Redlin, halfback, picked up seven yards around the left side of the line, but he muffed the ball on the next try, Zemke recovering on Neenah's 28.

Clintonville counted 12 first downs during the contest, making six in the first half and as many in the second, while Neenah posted only nine first downs, two in the first half and seven during the second half.

A 32-yard pass from Pucs to Poppy set the stage for the touchdown. Berton and Poppy snared the pass simultaneously and both hung on to the ball but the referee ruled the pass complete.

The teams changed goals for the quarter and when rushing proved useless, Pucs staked all on a pass that miraculously proved successful. The toss was meant for Poppy in the right end zone but Reed tried to knock it down and it bounced off his fingers into the waiting arms of Paul Pockpe who was across the pay line. Charles Clark's placekick went wide.

Ohio State Eleven Front-Runner in Big 10 Grid Race

Has Three Games Left With Chicago, Illinois, Michigan

CHICAGO — (AP) — Ohio State, nothing more than a good dark horse threat when the Big Ten football race began, has emerged definitely as the front-running candidate for the championship with the timely aid of several other conference teams.

The Buckeyes, after easily shelving Indiana last week, 24 to 0, face Chicago next Saturday and then Illinois and Michigan. If they win all three the title is theirs. If they lose one, the worst they can do is share the diadem.

Ohio State was accorded cooperation from a wholly unexpected source Saturday when Iowa, which had scored only one touchdown in four games, turned back hitherto undefeated and untied Michigan, 16 to 7. The Illinois checked the sensational Tom Harmon all day and outplayed and outmaneuvered the Wolverines all the way. Michigan plays Minnesota this week in a game between two two-timed eleven.

While the Wolverines were being smacked around, the Gophers took a bit of the same treatment from a rapidly-developing Northwestern eleven which won, 14 to 7. Bill de Corveant stepped off 61 yards with four minutes to play to give the Wildcats the decision.

Three May Lie

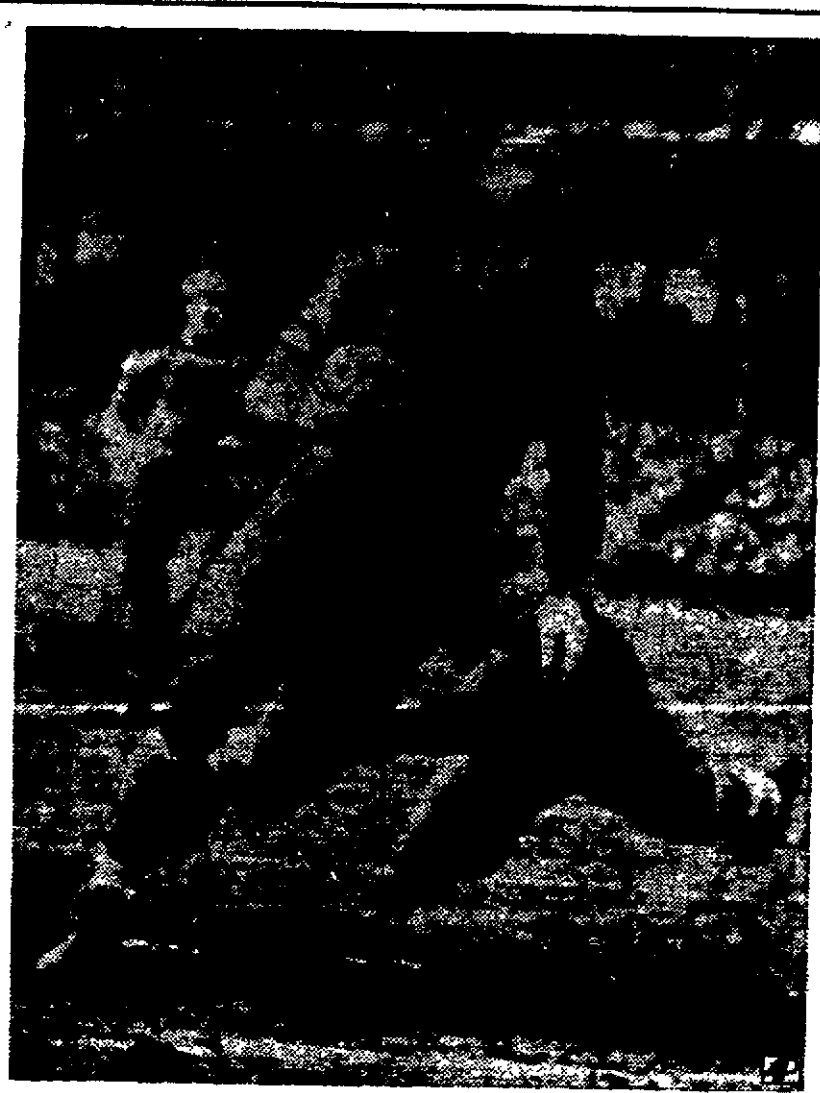

If Ohio State should wind up with a record of five victories and one defeat in the conference North-western and Iowa would have a chance to share the top berth. The Wildcats play Purdue this Saturday, then Iowa Nov. 25. Iowa, after taking on Notre Dame Saturday, faces Minnesota and Northwestern. If either team wins its remaining two conference games it will finish with a record of five wins in six games.

Wisconsin, idle last week, goes after an improved rating this week in a game against Illinois at Champaign. The Badgers have lost four straight games, the last three in the Big Ten, and are in the loop cellar. Indiana goes east to play Fordham.

Chicago fared no better against intersectional competition last week, bowing to Virginia, 47 to 0. The defeat gave the conference a record of 10 defeats and eight victories against non-league foes.

The Illinois victory erased the conference's last hope of a claimant to national honors, Michigan being the only Big Ten team which went into Saturday's game with a perfect record.

Iowa undoubtedly is the most improved outfit in the circuit. Playing their first season under a new coach Dr. Eddie Anderson, the Hawks have prised their rivals all season. They pulled another last week-end with a 4 to 0 victory over Purdue, getting two fourth quarter safeties on two blocked kicks.

THOMSEN SCORES FOR MARQUETTE
Gil Thomsen is shown scoring Marquette's first touchdown against Duquesne at Pittsburgh on a forward pass from Jimmy Richardson in the first quarter. Missing the tackle on the goal line is Vrhovac, Duquesne center. Duquesne won, 21 to 12, for its sixth straight victory.

yellow, and green clad trees which bring home the beauties of nature as no other season does, unless it be the blossom time of spring. Gold is everywhere, and the different hours of the day all have their attraction. The sun shining through the leaves or the more somber settings of cloudy days both bring out a veritable galaxy of color combinations that is almost breath-taking.

The falling leaves make a soft foothold that thrills anyone hiking through the wilds. There is a crispness in the air that makes one take deep, lung-filling breaths of pure air that is unburdened by any city smoke and grime. The sportsman who misses the autumn beauties just isn't conscious. He is sound asleep.

When honored Jack Frost gets his celebrated paint brush to working on the rustic scenes his work is beyond human conception. He is the master artist of the woods. The gorgeous gentian is one of the greatest miracles wrought in the bogs and marshes. It is even found among the dunes along the shores of Lake Michigan.

Glories of the Gentian

Just how the gentian is able to defy the ravages of frosts and find sufficient nourishment in the little pockets where it is found is beyond my ken. Just why Nature saves one of its greatest prizes for the waning days of the growing season is another mystery beyond me.

If you have never laid eyes on a gentian in the autumn you don't know the thrills of the discoverer of great beauty. Where you least expect such a sight, it will come flashing out at you.

There is much more to autumn days than hunting or the last days of fishing. All of the beauties of nature are at the climax of their year. If we are wide-awake we get far more than material things from fall days in the open.

Hacker recovering for the Indians on the New London 30 Reeds ripped wide around left end to the 17 for a first down, and in three more tries made the 5-yard stripe for another first. Berton carried the pigskin over left tackle and Reed's kick for the point was perfect. Score, Shawano 13, New London 6.

Shawano kicked off and a pass heaved by Pies on the first play was intercepted by Berton and carried to New London's 34. Reed tossed a beautiful aerial to Anderson who was tackled by Meiklejohn on the 11 for a 23-yard jump. Berton took the leather a yard through tackle. Reed made a first down on the half-foot line in three tries through center and then leaned over a piled-up line to count the marker. His kick was good to make the score 20 to 6.

A fumble after the kickoff gave the Indians another quick opportunity on the 31-yard line in pay territory. The Red and White held but Reed punted out on the 6-yard line. Pies ran from his own goal line to the 26 but further attempts set the ball back instead of ahead and the climax came when the New London halfback dropped a poor pass from center on the last down was lost the ball on his own 15. Reed passed over the line to Anderson on the 1-yard stripe. Meiklejohn pushed him from behind and he ruled the toss good because of interference. It was child's play for Reed to step over the pay line. Clark again blocked his kick to leave the final score at 26 to 6.

Reserves Finish

The final quarter bogged down into a slipshod scrimmage among the reserves. Seeing action for New London were David Stern, Anton Herres, Clifford Schoenick, Dick Demming, Bob Seering, Lewis Bell, George Webber, Karl Zerrner, Ray Bruhn and James Riley. Regular replacements during the game were Bernard Froeburger, end; Lester Schimke, guard; Walden Harris, and Richard McDaniel, backs.

Shawano replacements were Anderson, Priem, Doan, Culver, Gilson and Dicke while last quarter players included Rosenow, Reed's understudy, Kast, Prast, Ashley, Kressin and Hodgdon.

War Stories 25 Years Ago Combined Spread of Conflict With Hopes for Early Peace

BY VIOLA HELLESMANN

War stories from places as far apart as Paris and Tokio, and London and Asiatic Turkey, appearing in Appleton's two daily newspapers during the last days of October and the first days of November, 1914, gave evidence of how far the World war of 25 years ago had spread in its first three months.

According to news advices that came to London from Tokio on Oct. 29, 1914, the German cruiser Emden, flying the Japanese flag, slipped into the port of Panang, in the straits of the settlement, and torpedoed the Russian cruiser Jemchug and a French destroyer that were in the harbor. Both were reported to have been sunk with considerable loss of life.

Turning to news of another battlefront, Appleton readers found that the Germans operating in Russian Poland admitted that they had been forced to retreat because of the immense superiority of numbers of the Russians, but that among the Germans "were again assuming the offensive."

Bryan in Appleton

William Jennings Bryan, secretary of state in President Wilson's cabinet, spoke to a large crowd in the Appleton armory the previous afternoon, but his lengthy political campaign, which he had little about the war, according to the report in the Appleton papers.

"The president is waiting for the chance, in the interest of God, to bring peace," the famous orator said. "Negotiations are now on with the signing of 30 treaties, and terms will be reached whereby every dispute shall be referred to an international tribunal. A year's time shall elapse for passions to cool and time for reason to come back. These treaties are endorsed by all nations and are signed by most of them. Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany, Belgium, Norway, Sweden and all the republics in South America but one have endorsed them. In this manner war will be impossible, for this nation, and for all reasons."

From Petrograd on Oct. 30 came the announcement that "Russia has accepted Turkey's participation in the war as an opportunity to settle for all time the entire Turkish question." Orders had been sent to the Black Sea fleet to search out and destroy the Turkish squadrons then operating against Caucasian ports.

Sweeping claims of substantial gains by the allies in the battlefront in the north featured an official statement from the war office at Paris that day. The Belgians, it was stated, had cut the dikes and flooded the regions of the lower Yser. Following this up with a violent cannonading from both Belgian and French entrenchments they forced the Germans to retreat well to the north.

"Campaigns Progressing"

Beyond the statement that the "campaigns are progressing satisfactorily and we are making slow but substantial gains in both the eastern and western theaters of war," the war office at Berlin on Oct. 31 had no comment to make on the general war situation.

The swiftest cruisers of the Japanese fleet were allies in the German cruiser Emden which was raiding Japanese and British shipping in the Indian ocean and the vicinity of Up to that date, a report said, the cruiser had captured or sunk 14 British ships in the Indian ocean.

Much of Europe's attention that week was centered on the situation in Turkey. The Turkish ambassador in Berlin said on Nov. 2 that Turkey would declare a holy war at once. He declared the sultan had already sent a circular to the powers in which he took the position that the British army in Egypt had prevented his exercising his sovereignty, and therefore annexation of Egypt was necessary.

Consul Is Held

The following day London learned that the Turks had detained the British consul in Asiatic Turkey and all the European merchants doing business there as hostages. Grave fears were felt for their safety.

"The end of the war is in sight. It will end without greatly altering the national boundary lines of Europe." Those were the optimistic deductions of S. W. Straus, president of S. W. Straus and company, in an article in the November issue of Investor's Magazine, and reported in the Appleton Evening Crescent. Basing his opinion on personal observations with foreign bankers, Mr. Straus declared, "By Christmas the peace movement will be started. Europe's loss in life and in money, disruption of trade and of finance, pressure of poverty and hunger, will soon bring peace."

Hollywood—Some days ago I editorialized in Deanna Durbin's alleged "temperament"—citing charges made against her, and blaming her co-workers for feeding her a too-sugary diet of adulation. This morning I received a letter from a man who knows her exceptionally well. His remarks are important enough to be quoted here:

"I don't think adulation has gone to her head—her parents and Joe Pasternak have guarded against that consistently and cleverly. She does seem set and stubborn at times, however. It's my belief that she is a naturally positive character, but more important is the fact that she's a kid in an adult's world—a world that's playing for keeps. Some costly experiences have given her the idea that everybody wants something out of her (which is approximately true) and she no longer dares take any at face value. She therefore tends to cover up her uncertainty with positiveness, knowing that vacillation may end in capitulation, with possibly harmful results.

"As a case in point, the whole town ganged up on her to accept a radio contract a while ago. Every man who urged her to sign realized she would be making a mistake, but each man wanted a share of the proceeds. One friend, however, who stood to take about $500 a week if the deal went through—was honest enough to advise against signing. As a result Deanna now trusts him implicitly and takes his advice in

T. M. Cook Slays Self at Waupaca

Despondency Over Ill Health Believed Motive in Shooting

Waupaca — T. M. Cook, 63, was found dead in bed at 7:30 Sunday morning at his home on 512 N. Franklin street.

Irving and Oscar Cook, his sons, were sleeping upstairs when they heard a shot, and running downstairs discovered that their father had been shot through the mouth. Sheriff D. R. Campbell called Dr. John C. Johnson, coroner, who found Mr. Cook had taken his own life.

Mr. Cook recently returned to his home after ten and one-half weeks in a local hospital where he had been confined because of a serious eye ailment. It is believed despondency over ill health motivated his action.

N. P. Nelson Succumbs At Home of His Son

Waupaca — N. P. Nelson, 82, town of Waupaca, died Sunday at the home of his son, Charles W. Nelson, Waupaca, following a short illness. Mr. Nelson was released from the hospital about two weeks ago following treatment of injuries received when the car he was driving was involved in a collision.

Survivors are his children, Mrs. Alice Millus, Charles W. Nelson and Mrs. Mabel Stearns, Waupaca; Mrs. Mary Hanson, Racine; Oscar Nelson, Fond du Lac; Mrs. Carrie Branshaw, Milwaukee; and Hans Nelson, Torrance, California.

No funeral arrangements will be made until word has been received from Hans, in California.

even promises from the 80 Englishmen in the east not to discuss war views during shooting hours...

The other noon Joe Penner took the floor to glow about his latest home convenience—a recording apparatus installed beside his bed. "A terrific idea," he explained. "Now, if I wake up at night and think of a swell gag, I can just roll over and record it instead of getting up to hunt in the dark for a pencil and a piece of paper." Someone ventured to ask if the device works successfully, and a rueful expression swept the Penner phiz. "You know," he mourned, "I had it installed three weeks ago—and I haven't had an idea since."

High Life Cagers Show Strength in 2 Practice Games

Dobberstein Leads Scoring in Tilts With Bonduel, Shiocton

New London—First games of the season indicate the Miller High Life basketball squad will develop a lot again this year on the scoring ability of Vernon Dobberstein, tall center, who paced the team in victories over Bonduel and Shiocton in practice games at Washington High school Sunday afternoon.

Bonduel came to New London unexpectedly so the New London team played a double header, taking the visitors by a score of 23 to 14 and then beating Shiocton 25 to 9.

Melvin Lathrop shared scoring honors with Dobberstein in the Bonduel contest, the former dropping three buckets and a free throw and the latter counting four points. Fehman snared two and Gottgetreu one. Against Shiocton, Dobberstein dumped six buckets and caged a gift shot to tally half the team's scores.

Thursday evening the High Life will return to Shiocton for a practice game.

Promoters of 'Ham-and-Eggs' May Not Want Win at Polls

Los Angeles—Notwithstanding the religious fury of the suckers who have been seduced by promises of counterfeit money, there is reason to doubt that the promoters of the ham-and-eggs lunacy in California really want to win at the polls next Tuesday. Should they win, the racket would pass into a new and really dangerous phase.

Their nominee for dictator, Roy G. Owens, author of a program of economic nihilism and late contributor of economic theories to the publications of Father Divine, would take the entire state treasury under his own hand without any possibility of legal restraint by the courts or the governor. That is a possibility too real for frivolous treatment by the worried and bewildered opponents of the madness, but it is also true that once Owens acquired these powers he would be in a position to repudiate his associates in a promotion which started as a typical Los Angeles aberration and silence any criticism from them as an effort to impair the capacity of the people to produce goods, services and conveniences.

At present the members of the ham-and-eggs movement contribute one cent a day, and the promoters claim $350,000 members. They probably have an income of $3,500 a day in pennies wheedled from the poor, plus further amounts derived from special offerings for emergencies, such as their liberty bell fund, their Easter fund and their social security fund.

The liberty bell collection was an emergency sacrifice in the process of which the members were induced to send in their membership cards accompanied by contributions and received them back adorned by little bell-shaped bronze-paper stickers. The ostensible intention was to cast a new liberty bell to be rung as a curfew on economic slavery, but inasmuch as curfew time has not yet arrived, the bell remains unfinished business.

This work of emancipation include one Willis Allen, described as an advertising man, who on Jan. 18, 1937, was fined $100 and placed on probation for two years in the federal court on his plea of nolo contendere to an indictment charging misuse of the mails in connection with the sale of a hair restorer. In June of this year Mr. Allen appealed to the court for permission to withdraw his plea and for dismissal of the indictment, but was defeated in this effort to revitalize his precious name by the court's observation that it couldn't be done without falsification of the court record.

Works as a Crusade

Mr. Allen might prosper in the ham-and-eggs movement, but experience in the racket to date has shown that then, again, he might, for there have been many fallings-out among the astonishing and ever-changing company. So he and his comrades in the holy work have to consider that as long as ham-and-eggs remains a crusade it is a thing of living beauty, but that once it succeeds it will pass into the hands of one man who knows all about them and their methods and motives and might not only throw them out but punish them for protesting. He would have power to do so under their own amendment.

Moreover, the spirit of the campaign has been such as to suggest that the promoters do not seriously care for the risk of attempting to run California, which still includes, especially in its northern reaches, some men and women who would ished the right to vote the "What-have-I-got-to-lose?" sentiment is strong, and the grotesquery "ham-and-eggs" rises out of the clamor of groups arguing endlessly.

Reason and the love of liberty are so far gone that the opposition doesn't dare use speakers who, in normal times and places, would be heard in thoughtful debate. For that reason, and on the theory that in the present confusion only a screwball can beat a screwball, the opposition has selected as its greatest hopes Upton Sinclair and old Doc Townsend, who are receiving vicious abuse from those who once praised their names and praise from those who used to ridicule them.
